LeCraw Decision To Retain Hornsby Reported; Work on Clark Howell Homes Halted by Strike

Mayor-Elect, Chief Discuss Police Matters

Bridges Declared Ready To Support 'Peace' Arrangement.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
Instead of being removed as chief of police by Mayor-elect LeCraw when he assumes office January 6, Chief M. A.
Hornsby will be made "chief in fact as well as in name," to quote a source close to the new mayor.

For weeks there have been reports that LeCraw would demote
Hornsby and elevate Captain Neal
Ellis to the post.

It was learned yesterday that Chief Hornsby has on several occasions recently gone to LeCraw's home at the latter's invitation and that the two discussed police matters "candidly and frankly."

It is reported that in response to the question "whether he has ever been police chief in fact," Hornsby was so vague that LeCraw told him "you needn't answer that question, but you'll have a chance to be chief for the first time after I am mayor."

LeCraw admitted he and Hornsby had discussed matters.

Alderman G. Dan Bridges, slated for the chairmanship of the 1941 police committee, supported Ellis when Hornsby was elevated, and also sponsored Ellis nearly eight years ago when T. O. Stur-divant was named chief.

It is now said that Bridges probably will go along at least temporarily with the arrangement because it is known he wants to avoid any legal tangles which might arise from a precipitate move designed to oust Hornsby.

The LeCraw-Hornsby conferences and LeCraw's assurances to Hornsby are regarded by Hornsby's friends as an indication that the incoming administration is "not gunning for him."

Mayor Hartsfield made a statement to the newsmen which is interpreted as supporting the Le-Craw-Hornsby peace. He said "I will stage the most complete political blackout any ex-mayor of Atlanta ever did."

"What will you do if Hornsby is attacked?" the mayor was asked.

"I have always been Hornsby's friend and will still be, but you needn't worry about him. He is going to be all right," was Hartsfield's answer.

Bookies Are Bilked Because of Boner

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28.—(UP)—
New Orleans bookies, who do more business on football games than on horse races during the season, failed to watch the post time of the Brown-Columbus tilt and it cost them $5,000 today.

The two eastern teams played this morning to a scoreless tie.

But many of the local operators had "six points against Brown" chalked up on their slates this afternoon, never dreaming a football game would be played in the morning.

By the time they had learned their error they had been "taken" for $5,000 by bettors who knew the score and didn't mind gambling on a sure thing, as long as it was against the bookies.

INSISTENT DRAFTEE.
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(UP)—
A man answering the draft call in Brooklyn was rejected for failure to pass the eyesight test. He insisted that the only thing wrong with his eyes was a hangover from a "conscription party" and that he would be all right after a night's sleep. That was yesterday. He returned today and passed the examination.

Shattering New Blow Dealt to Italian Fleet

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A new Italian battleship, four big cruisers and two destroyers have been damaged in the British Navy's latest chase of Premier Mussolini's fast fleet, the admiralty announced tonight in an action-packed communique.

It gave a lion's share of the credit to the naval air force.

The Italians, sighted in force Wednesday afternoon west of the Italian island of Sardinia, immediately headed for home, the admiralty asserted, but in pursuit British planes torpedoed a 35,000-ton battleship of the new Littorio class, a 10,000-ton cruiser of the Bolzano class and scored hits or "near misses" on two other cruisers.

British naval guns set afire one cruiser and damaged two destroyers.

Except for the fired cruiser and the destroyers, all the damage to the Italians was inflicted by the Skua and Swordfish planes of the fleet air arm.

The 10,000-ton British cruiser Berwick suffered two hits, which killed seven men, but did not damage the ship.

Firm Military Rule Clamped On Bucharest To Halt Purge

Greeks Seize Argyrocastron In Deadly Bayonet Battle

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 28.—(UPI)—Greek forces today captured Argyrocastron, most important Italian base in southwestern Albania, after a long hand-to-hand battle through the streets with the Fascist defenders, according to frontier reports reaching here.

More than 340
prisoners were captured after artillery had buried nearly 400 more persons in ruins, the reports said.

Draftee Center Is Not Expected To Be Affected

Plumbers, Steamfitters Protest Employment of Alabaman.

A strike of plumbers and steamfitters employed by an Atlanta contractor has stopped all work on the Clark Howell slum clearance project and will bring delay in opening the Capitol Homes project, but is not expected to affect the draftee reception center on which construction has started at Fort McPherson.

Objection to his company's employing a Gadsden (Ala.) plumbing union member as superintendent was declared by J. H. Loftis, vice president of the Loftis Plumbing and Heating Company, the contractor, to be the cause of the trouble. This was confirmed by Mott Gormley, business agent of the plumbers' local union.

Adjustment Seen.

Early adjustment is expected with the arrival from the American Federation of Labor convention at New Orleans of George Masterson, international president of the organization, and Richard F. Walsh, general organizer. Already, according to Loftis, the local union has been notified by the international that its position is wrong, but Gormley said late yesterday he had not received such

A. Q. Smith, of the firm of Smith & Pew, general contractors for the 1,000-man reception center at Fort McPherson, said yesterday failure of 10 Loftis plumbers to start work Tuesday, as scheduled, would not affect the work there. Army officials, while describing the project as not endangered, said the strike was not endangered.

However, James Therrill, executive director of the Atlanta Housing Authority, declared that with about 100 plumbers and steamfitters of the Loftis organization "out," all activity was stopped at the Clark Howell project, and that a week's delay in moving-in of tenants would result.
The strike is more serious in its delay at the Capitol Homes.

The superintendent, W. A.

Hardy, was declared by Gormley to have been telephoned from Alabama. Loftis insisted Hardy previously had been employed in Atlanta in a similar capacity without objection from the local union.

Loftis said he had received from Thomas E. Burke, secretary-treasurer of the plumbers' international, with headquarters in Washington, this letter:

"Permit me to say we feel you as an employer should have the right to choose any one you see fit to supervise your work, providing he is a good-standing member of the United Association, which you say Mr. Hardy is."

"We are taking this subject up with Business Agent Gormley, all with a view of having him adjust this matter satisfactorily to all concerned. The fact of the matter is, we are sending him a copy of our letter to you."

Gormley was declared to plan calling plumbers from a defense project in Jacksonville, on which the Loftis company also is engaged, if the dispute here is not settled satisfactorily.

The crews were aboard the ships and the first maneuvers to leave had been made.

The third ship, the Orinoco, showed no signs of joining the Idarwald and the Rhein and will apparently remain in port.

Tear Gas Guns Scatter Crowd Shouting 'Down With Wallace.'

(Picture on Page 8.)

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—(UPI)—

A crowd of some 500 Mexicans, shouting "Viva Almazan—Down With Wallace!" tried to storm the outer doors of the United States embassy tonight and then scattered before the tear gas guns of motorcycle policemen just as

Henry A. Wallace, vice president of the United States, arrived in the capital on an official visit.

No attempt was made to molest

Wallace, who is here for the inauguration next Sunday of Mexi-cio's president-elect, Manuel Avila

Camacho, administration candidate who defeated General Juan

Andrea Almazan last July 7.

However, it finally took the motorcycle escort which had brought Wallace here from Zimapan, to break up the demonstration.

At Zimapan, Wallace had told a large group of Mexican officials that "our being unified in true understanding will contribute a powerful influence to fortify this hemisphere as a sure haven of peace and culture where democracy will always live."

Wallace and his party appeared to have escaped a serious encounter with the Almazanists because the crowd had gathered at the embassy instead of at the residence, which is around the corner.

At the residence, Wallace was honored at a brief welcoming ceremony by girls in gay native costumes.

Entering the building, Wallace coolly gave the impression that he was scarcely aware of the noisy commotion a little distance away, although it could be heard within the residence.

zation sponsored largely by private

U. S. and Latin Nations Agree To Coffee Pact

Action Designed To Bolster Hemisphere Economic Defenses.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(UPI) The United States and 14 coffee-producing nations of the western hemisphere today signed an unprecedented agreement designed to stabilize the coffee industry and bolster the economic defenses of the New World.

The agreement divides on a quota basis the United States and world coffee markets among Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Peru and Venezuela.

The amount of coffee which each of the nations may send to this country and to areas outside the United States in any one year is limited by the pact in an effort to assure "equitable terms of trade for both producers and consumers by adjusting the supply to the demand."

The convention signed today, subject to ratification by each of the signatory governments according to individual constitutional processes, climaxed six months of discussion and debate.

framers of the agreement hailed it as the first major co-operative step toward improvement of the economy of the Americas, which they feel will reduce the danger of domination of parts of the New World by a totalitarian-ruled Europe.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles characterized the compact as "another concrete manifestation of the broad principles of hemispheric co-operation laid down in recent conferences of the American republics." He signed it on behalf of the United States.

Highway board practices in establishing prison camps as developed by the defense in the government's prosecution of J. G. (Bugs) Glover met with a setback yesterday when United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp produced written leases for land on which many of the state camps stand.

Glover was indicted on a mail fraud charge, growing out of the construction of three state-financed houses on land he owned adjacent to state prison camps, while he was superintendent of state convict forces.

The defense has contended that his action was in keeping with board practice, and Glover has said he understood obtaining land for camps was usually a matter of oral agreement.

Leases Produced. Cross-examining the defendant, Camp produced original and photostatic copies of leases for camp land at Soperton, for an addition to the Soperton camp, for land at Homerville and Cairo, at Hartense, a renewal of the Hartense lease, for land at Lakeland, and a letter concerning a lease for a camp in Dawson county.

He also produced a written agreement between the highway department and the city of Cairo in which the city agreed to furnish power to the state camp in the vicinity. Many of the papers bore Glover's initials.

Defense also received another set-back, when, on cross-examination, Glover failed to prove the complete removal of any warden's houses from camp sites when camps were abandoned. It has been Defense Attorney Paul Carpenter's contention that the state did not lose on Glover's three houses, as it was the board's practice to remove the houses when camps were broken up.

Members Testify. Members of the highway board, L. L. Patten and Herman Watson, have testified that such was the board's practice and that in their belief Glover had not defrauded the state of a cent.

Talking easily during the morning as he explained wheres and whyfors of his administration to the jury, Glover became a difficult witness under cross-examination and was reprimanded several times by United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood for his failure to give direct answers to Camp's questions.

"Mr. Glover, can't you answer a simple question?" the judge asked him once.

"I think you understand. Can't you answer?" the judge asked again.

"Be more direct in your answers. Maybe we'll save time," Underwood later directed.

Falls Recognition. Falls Recognition.

Shown the lease for the Soperton camp, the witness failed to recognize it, and said, "All I knew was my agreement with Mr. Gillis." The lease for the Homerville camp brought the observation, "I never read it before. I don't remember having seen it."

Glover identified his signature on the Cairo lease, but when shown the lease for the Hartense camp said: "Somebody told me there was a lease; somebody told me there wasn't."

"Did you know anything about these leases?" Camp asked.

Glover replied that news of them occasionally came to them through his camp warden.

During the morning the defendant explained how he came into possession of the properties and houses in Dade, Dawson and Miller counties. The Miller county place was an accident, he stated, explaining that it was deeded to him by the county commission. He and his lawyers investigated and found it should have been deeded to the camp warden.

Admitted View. Admitted View.

The Dade county lot was bought for him by "Red" Townsend after he admired a view of a bluff and said he'd like to own the piece of land. Soon afterwards and before the property was bought, the bluff was blasted away, but when Townsend mailed him the deed he felt that the only honorable way out was at least to make a $50 down payment.

In the meantime he bought eight acres in Dawson county as the site for a summer shack for his wife and children. He did not know that it adjoined the land leased for a camp in that locality. The house was built there by the warden on his own initiative, and he had nothing to do with it, he testified.

"I never expected to own those houses. I never intended to own them. I don't want them and wouldn't have them," he said over and over again from the stand.

A Thousand Georgia Families 'Refugees' From Army's Guns

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Along the sandy roads of five southeast Georgia counties through the rainy winter months a stream of refugees is flowing, moving, bag and baggage, out of the range of the army's guns.

Some of them are leaving land their grandfathers and their great-grandfathers worked. Some are leaving land men of their blood have held since Georgia was a colony.

They don't want to leave, any more than a Frenchman or a Pole or a Czech wanted to leave his land when war came. For unlike Europe's refugees they are leaving for good. They are selling their land and scattering everywhere and they never will come back.

Not Grumbling.

In spite of all this, though, they are going, and are getting ready to go, without grumbling. They feel that if the government wants their land to practice war-making on, the least they can do is to move cheerfully.

There are about a thousand families in the five counties who will have to move to make way for the great antiaircraft firing center that the army is setting up near Hinesville. That means there are about 4,000 people, old folks and young, who will have to move.

Some of them, already gone, lived on the 5,000 acres where the great cantonments that will house seven regiments are going up. The rest of them who live in the 360,000-acre firing area, spreading over the northern part of Liberty county and parts of Bryan, Long, Tattnall and Evans counties will be moving from now on, until about the first of March, when they will all be gone. This serves two purposes. It clears the area so the army can go ahead, and it gets them located somewhere else in time to make a crop.

Everybody Satisfied.

The government is not just picking them up by the scruff of the neck and tossing them out. Everything that can be done to make their uprooting easier is being done. For instance, the Soil Conservation Service went in and looked over their farms and set what they thought was a fair price. Everybody seemed to be satisfied.

Then they began making boundary surveys and running lines. That's where things slowed up. Some folks held the original land grants. Other farms had changed hands dozens of times in the past 125 years. Crumbling files in old courthouses had to be searched, and that abstracts might be made up.

While all this was going on, a Farm Security Administration, a federal agency, and the Agricultural Extension Service went about among the people, asking them where they would like to move to, how big a place they wanted, and so on.

They found out that nearly everybody wanted to stay just as close to their old homes as they could. They wanted to stay in the flat lands, in the lonely pine-tree country.

So these two agencies made another survey, trying to find out what farm land was available near the area to be evacuated. They ran into a little trouble, at first. Then they made a survey to find out what kind of financial situation the potential refugees were in. Most everybody was in pretty good shape. They had tools and mules and household gear and a truck or wagon they could move in. All they will need from the Farm Security Administration is a little cash money to run them while they are making their first crop, and maybe the money to pay rent on the land they choose until the Army pays off and they can buy.

Town Abandoned.

Liberty county is the one most affected. G. B. Eunice, Liberty county farm agent, says that nearly 150,000 acres of that county's 300,000 acres of upland, the best farm land in the county, will be in the antiaircraft range. Two little settlements, Willie and Taylors Creek, will have to be abandoned. Four hundred families will have to move. Over in Bryan county the village of Clyde will be abandoned.

It always was a lonely land, where you might ride for miles without seeing a human being. When spring comes, and from then on, it will be lonelier still.

J. L. Staten Dies
In Charlotte, N. C.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 28.—Valdostans learned today of the death of J. L. Staten at Charlotte, N. C. Mr. Staten was among the pioneer business men of Valdosta, where the family was prominent and influential in business, social, political and religious circles.

He was born in Statenville, Echols county, the town being named for the family. His parents were the late Captain and Mrs. J. W. Staten, of Echols.

Forty years ago Mr. Staten was engaged in the general mercantile business in Valdosta as a partner of his brother-in-law, J. N. Griffin, now Valdosta's oldest male resident. After many years of successful merchandising, Mr. Staten moved to Charlotte, N. C., where he became a leading merchant and prominent in business, social and religious circles.

Several years ago, having retired, he returned to Valdosta to make his home.

Survivors include one son and one daughter, Lloyd Staten and Mrs. Virginia Hamilton Cannon, both of Charlotte. His first wife was Miss Virginia Hamilton, of Savannah. A few years ago he was married to Mrs. W. A. Morgan, of this city.

Services were held in Charlotte today and interment will be in Bonaventure cemetery, Savannah, tomorrow.

Cotton, Corn Club Winners Named

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 28.—Average per-acre yields of 3,465 pounds of seed cotton and 173 bushels of corn have won the title of 1940 champions for two Georgia 4-H Club boys: J. H. Nelms, Madison county, cotton winner, and Walter Mallard, Bullock county, corn.

G. V. Cunningham, state 4-H leader for the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, who announced the two 4-H winners, said that Earl Varner, Emanuel county agent, has been chosen for the most outstanding work with 4-H members in cotton and corn projects.

The two champions, along with County Agent Varner, will go to Chicago Saturday as free trip winners to the National 4-H Club Congress. Varner will also attend the annual County Agents' Association meeting while in Chicago.

Congregation Mickve Israel To Observe 150th Anniversary.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 28.—(P)—Congregation Mickve Israel, third-oldest Jewish synagogue in the United States, will observe tomorrow the 150th anniversary of its charter.

The religious group, founded in 1733 when Savannah first was colonized, received the charter November 30, 1790, from Governor Edward Telfair under a special act of the newly-created Georgia legislature.

The sesquicentennial service will be directed by Dr. George Solomon, rabbi of the synagogue since 1903, and by the Right Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, Episcopal bishop of Georgia, with A. Gordon Cassels, present head of the Midway Society, as guest. Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, will address the group.

The present synagogue on Bull street was erected in 1878 and rebuilt after a fire in 1927. Since erection of this building the congregation has had but two rabbis, Isaac P. Mendes, who served from 1878 to 1904, and George Solomon, who has served from 1903 to the present.

Mickve Israel has preserved carefully its minutes, reflecting the history and life of coastal Georgia from its founding. The notes are copious in times of peace and prosperity; more meager in times of war and disaster through which the community of Savannah has passed.

The congregation still has in use the Torah or Scroll of the Testament which was brought over by the first Portuguese Jewish colonists in 1733.

Rifled Pocketbook Is Found 4 Miles From Scene of Slaying.

FORSYTH, Ga., Nov. 28.—(P)—Sheriff L. C. Bittick today turned to a rifled pocketbook in his search for a clue in the slaying of Lloyd Attaway, 30, Dublin automobile salesman.

The pocketbook containing the salesman's drivers' license and draft registration card, but no money, was found in a ditch about four miles from where the body was discovered on Highway 42 five miles north of Forsyth early yesterday morning. It was examined for fingerprints.

Sheriff Bittick also checked ownership of a .38 caliber revolver found near the slain salesman. It had been fired three times.

Attaway's body was discovered partly in a ditch and partly on the highway shoulder at 7:30 punctured by a bullet.

Sheriff Bittick said today four different witnesses had given him a description of a man attempting to flag a ride near the scene of the slaying Wednesday.

He said the man was about 5 feet

4 inches tall, with a mustache and a mustache.

3 of 4 on Romantic Adventure Die; Surviving Woman Near Death.

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The story of a romantic South Sea adventure by two couples, which turned grimly into death for three of the party and near starvation for the fourth, was pieced together today from the crude log of the wrecked gig "Wing On."

The "Wing On," which sailed from the United States last August, came to grief on a coral reef off Vanuatu-Levu.

Details from the log and various papers found in the boat helped identify the victims as:

Dalton Arthur Conly, Los Angeles.

Eva R. Larson, or Conly, presumably Conly's wife.

Chester A. Thompson, Los Angeles.

Near Starvation.

The only survivor is Thompson's widow, Fern Thompson. She was found in an emaciated condition aboard the yacht and brought to a hospital in Suva. Her condition was pronounced grave.

Thompson died at sea on November 7, the log indicated, Conly on November 12 or 13 and Mrs. Conly about November 23.

Kept in amateurish manner, the boat's record read grimly after an entry telling of striking a "clone."

Discovered Chet had died. What next? Help us, oh God," was the entry on November 7.

"Buried Chester Thompson, 21, died starvation; too far gone at any rate stand any more remaining apricots," was the notation the next day.

The last entry, on November 12, was merely, "D. A. Conly, master yacht Wing On."

Found on Reef.

The yacht, with a hole 13 feet by four feet in the starboard side, was sighted November 24 on Visoqo reef by a Seventh-Day Adventist mission ketch. A missionary boarded the wreckage and found an emaciated young woman, the body of a woman who had died recently and the body of a man, dead for some time.

The second boat said the Wing On cleared Seattle August 14 for the Marquesas Islands. Apparently land had not been sighted since the party left the United States.

A post-mortem showed that Mrs. Conly died of starvation.

Visoqo reef is located at an isolated spot on Vanuatu-Levu Island, which is northeast of here.

(Mrs. A. M. Conly, mother of the wrecked mariner, said in Oakland, Cal., that her son and daughter-in-law left their infant daughter with her when they departed for the South Seas. The Thompsons' two children, acquaintances said in Los Angeles, had been left there with their maternal grandparents.

Both Thompson and Conly were expert seamen, it was said in Los Angeles by St. John Thompson, brother of Chester Thompson.

Rome Spread Plant

Is Damaged by Fire

Special to THE CONSTITUTION
ROME, Ga., Nov. 28.—The Dellingar Spread Company was operating at full capacity again today following a five-hour delay caused by flames that threatened to engulf the entire plant and brought heavy damage. W. E. Dellingar, head of the firm, estimated fire and water damage at $10,000. The loss partly was covered by insurance, he said.

The flames originated in the laundry department and were fanned by a high wind. The city fire department, aided by the sprinkler system, was able to confine the flames to that department and the warehouse.

FORTUNE IN CHECKS.

Man, 76, Wounds Wife, Kills Himself

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A Thanksgiving Day tragedy described by police as an attempted mercy slaying and a suicide brought probably fatal wounds to Mrs. Edward A. Lapp, 75, and instant death to her 76-year-old husband early today.

Police Sergeant James Stelling said Lapp told his family physician he was tired of seeing his wife suffer—she had been an invalid a year and a half—and hit her on the head, and that Lapp then went upstairs to the bathroom and shot himself. He said Lapp apparently became suddenly insane.

The couple only six weeks ago celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, greeting scores of friends at their home in a fashionable residential section.

Restaurant Man Sends Another $50 to F. D. R.

Pete Cranton, Atlanta restaurant man, yesterday sent his second $50 check to President Roosevelt.

to issue an appeal for the establishment of a Greek War Relief Fund. He sent his first check a month ago, asking the President to make a speech arousing Greeks of America to the plight of their mother country.

Judge Dissolves Wage-Hour Writ

MACON, Ga., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Federal District Judge Bascom S. Deaver held that the wage and hour administrator an injunction to restrain the Farmers' Peanut Company, of Cairo, Ga., from violating the wage and hour laws.

Judge Deaver held that a peanut shelling plant is a plant preparing an agricultural product for the market and therefore is exempt from federal wage and hour laws.

A temporary order enjoining the company from violating wage and hour laws was dissolved.

Judge Deaver held that a provision of the fair labor standards act exempting "any individual employed within the area of production (as defined by the administrator) in handling . . . and preparing agricultural commodities for the market" applied to the peanut company.

He ruled that the administrator's definition of "area of production" was not definite and therefore was not valid.

British Health Standing Test, White Assets

Experts Pleasantly Surprised by Lack of Incipient Epidemics.

By W. L. WHITE.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
LONDON, Nov. 28.—(By Wireless)—Ordinarily the fact that a nation's rate of sickness is practically at a normal figure is not news; but the English this year have good reason to be excited about it when you consider what they are going through.

According to all accepted rules English health statistics should be ruffled by incipient epidemics and because they have not been so far it is a pleasant surprise to many British experts. English health authorities are watching London closely, mainly because they feared deep shelters, and in particular subway tubes, might become breeding grounds for epidemics.

Here every night thousands of people sleep elbow to elbow. So long as the trains are running the air is changed occasionally; but after they quit, at about 1 o'clock, it becomes progressively more fetid until by 4 o'clock in the morning it is heavy with repulsive odors and so thick that a child could cut it with a dull fruit knife.

Still more potentially dangerous is the problem of lice. The very people who are the most afraid of bombs and therefore arrive the earliest to get places for the night on the deepest subway platforms are also by and large those that take the fewest baths.

Many Scorn Shelters.

This is one reason why the vast majority of London's self-respecting working class scorns the deep shelters, insisting stoutly that because of the class of people who go down there lice have thrived until they now are bigger than lobsters.

However that may be, the authorities are doing what they can, and this includes installing free shower baths in some of the bigger shelters. This is necessary as many people are in these shelters because, having been bombed out of their homes and lost all their clothing except what they have on—which often they must wear for many days or weeks—they have no other place to go.

Such self-respecting people welcome and use the public showers. They are very quick to discover, and complain to the wardens, when their neighbors are omnious, or, as the slang phrase here goes, "chatty."

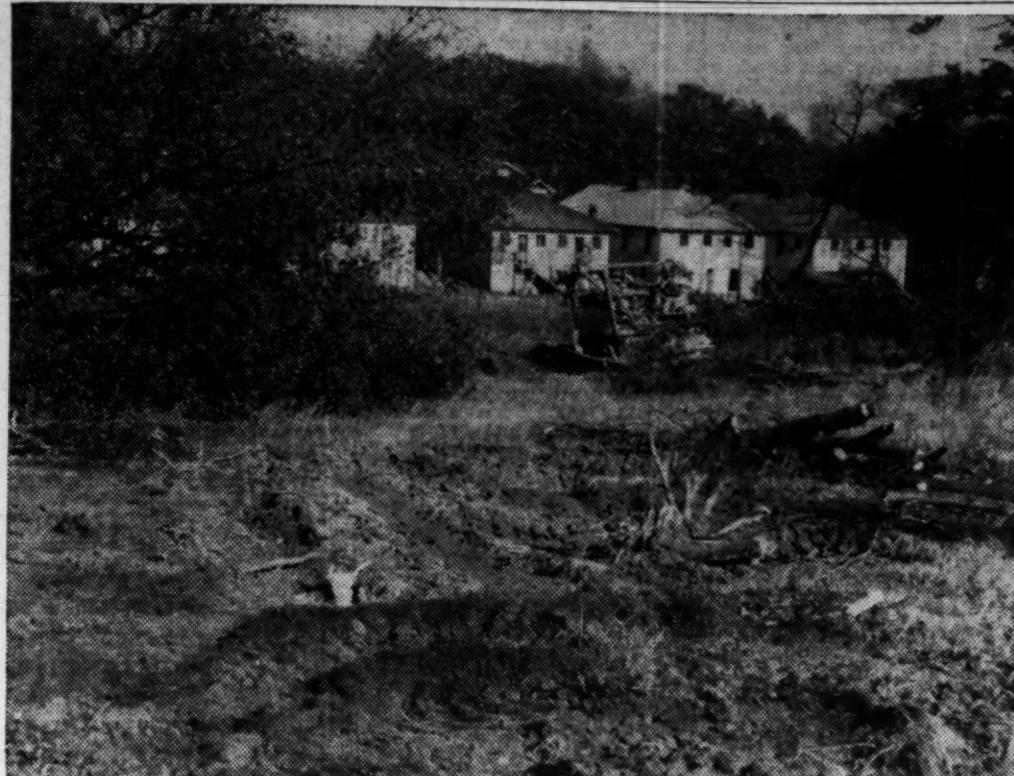

Another Problem.

But here the authorities are up against something else. Because a man may be infested with large lice, which are meaner than Spanish fighting bulls, and yet likes that condition, no method has been found so far under the British constitution by which he can be forced to take a bath.

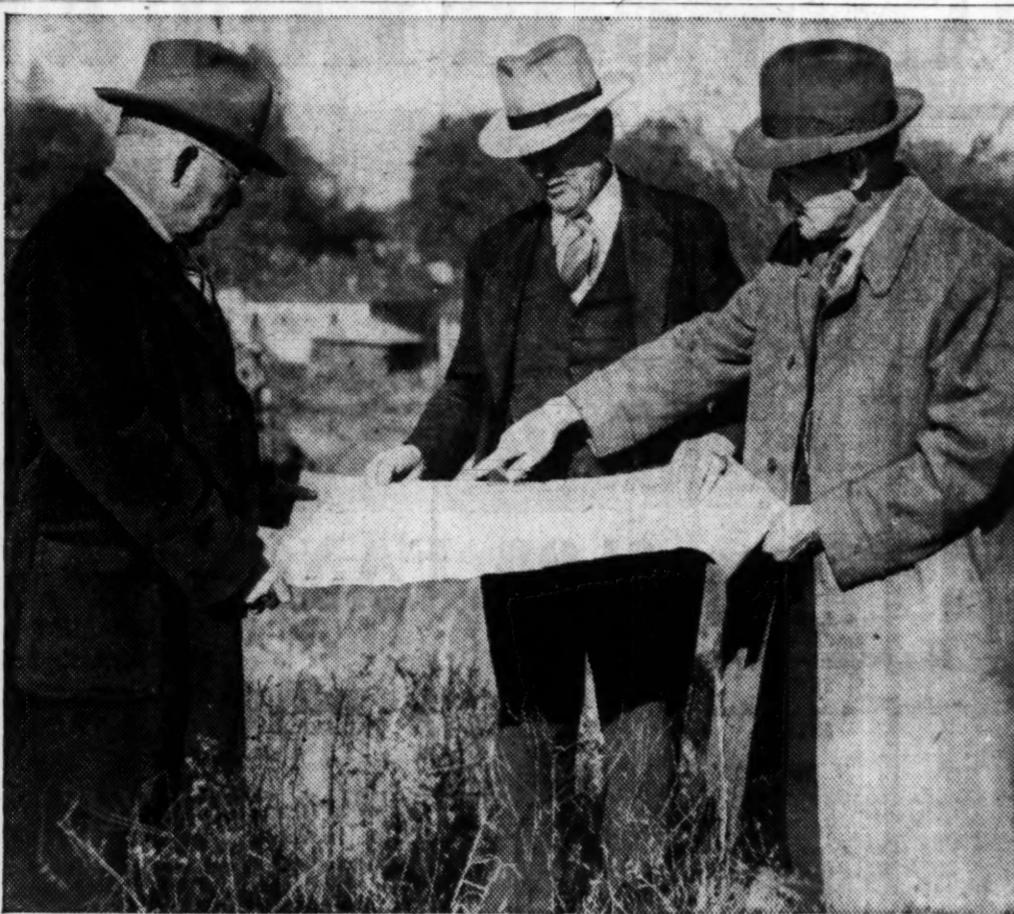

Yet so far the deep-shelter lice of London have brought no typhus with them. This louse-born plague is always endemic in the Balkans, and occasional mild cases of it turn up even now in the slums of Glasgow and in Ireland. But to date London has been free of them.

Health authorities are more immediately concerned with problems created by millions of bomb-blasted windowpanes in London. It is possible to replace only a small percentage of them and repairs usually are made by covering the hole with thick, weatherproof tar paper, which shuts out the sunlight completely. But even this takes time.

A single bomb, landing harm-

CLEARING FOR MARKET—This giant tractor was busy yesterday tearing trees and stumps from a tract of land at Sylvan road and Murphy avenue in preparation for the construction of a $5,000,000 state farmers' market. The work is under the general supervision of John Whitley, of the Whitley Construction Company.

STUDY PLANS—While the work of clearing the site for the new state farmers' market proceeded yesterday, John Whitley, left, construction official; S. C. McWilliams, center, master of the present market, and L. M. Foster, pure foods inspector, took a look at plans for the new project.

lessly in the street, may blow out 100 windows, and it may be weeks before they are covered. London at best is a damp, draughty town in winter. This year it will be trebly so.

The death rate from pneumonia among the aged is always high in January and February, and considering the present conditions it should rise much higher. What pleases and surprises the health authorities is that so far the curve is only a little above normal.

Piers of N. Y. Gavel Indication Of Nazi Drive

Germans Put Rental on Monthly Basis 2 Years Before War.

By IRA WOLFERT.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Although the vast de luxe, city-owned piers, which once sheltered the great luxury liners are empty now and line the New York waterfront like gunning guns, a substantial part of the gold filling for same continues to come in. Rentals on those piers amount to a little less than half the pre-war sum.

Piers 84 and 86, where the Bremen and Europa once spread their magnificence, have been empty and profitless since September 1, 1939, the day the war broke out. The Germans had been paying $300,000 a year rental for these two piers. Up to April, 1937, this was on a long-term lease basis, but at that time the lease was put on a monthly basis. This, coming two and one-half years before the actual outbreak of war and a short while before the Nazis started gobbling up territory of other nations, was the first indication the New York waterfront had that Adolf Hitler was expecting serious trouble.

Piers 88 and 90 are rented by the French and British, respectively. Each has signed a 10-year lease that expires in July, 1948. The Normandie is tied up at Pier 88, where the annual rental is $197,718. The Queen Elizabeth in January, 1938, Italy began ne-slipped out of Pier 90 last week, and the space is now empty except for some furniture it left behind to leave room for troops. But the annual rental of $189,188 continues to be paid.

Italy held Pier 92 for its Rex and Conte de Savoia. It's a one-sided pier and the rental, on a long-term lease basis, was $59,367. Italy started 18 months before its entry into it, Italy was getting set for trouble.

negotiations for a new lease and continued to occupy Pier 92 on a monthly basis. Negotiations were protracted by every devise known to sharpshooters, and the general impression left behind by the vanishing Italians was that, beginning at least 10 months before the war actually started and 18 months before its entry into it, Italy was getting set for trouble.

Cudahy Resigns Ambassador Post
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—John Cudahy, of Milwaukee, resigned orally to President Roosevelt today as ambassador to Bel-gium.

Cudahy said he intended to devote his time to writing, particularly a novel about Poland, where he served as ambassador from 1933 to 1937 when he became minister to the Irish Free State.

He took over the Belgian post January 15, 1940, and remained there for two months after the German occupation. He left July 18, when the Germans ordered diplomatic representatives out of the country.

Cudahy arrived in this country August 13. Since then he has written several articles defending King Leopold's capitulation to the Germans. He also took part in the recent presidential campaign.

Direct Military Aid to Greece Is Favored in U. S., Poll Shows

Same Sympathy Voters Had for Finland, Norway Seen Plus Desire To Make Loan for Purchase of War Supplies.

DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
Copyright, 1940.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 28.—American public sympathy with Greece and desire to give her material aid is demonstrated in a public opinion survey now being conducted by the Institute. Preliminary returns show a substantial majority in favor of making American war materials and airplanes available to the embattled Greeks, in much the same spirit of sympathy for small nations as was noted when Finland was invaded last year, and Norway last spring.

The question put to cross-section of voters deals with the issue of lending money to Greece for the purchase of war materials. Legal obstacles, such as the Johnson Act, at present stand in the way of any actual loan to the Greeks, but it is significant that a majority of American voters favor a Greek loan in principle.

"Do you think the United States should lend money to Greece for the purchase of arms, airplanes and other war materials?"

With interviewing in the survey still going on this week, returns thus far show the following:

Help Greece
Do not help
One in six (15 per cent) was undecided and without an opinion.

The events of the last nine months have brought about a highly significant change in the American public attitude toward aiding foreign nations at war.

When Tiny Finland was attempting to stem the Russian invasion last winter, the Institute found that while American voters were willing to lend her money to buy farm products and other non-military supplies here, they were not willing to grant a loan for the purchase of arms, airplanes and other materials of a strictly military nature.

This same attitude prevailed at the time Norway was invaded. Even though sympathy was overwhelming with Norway, a majority (57 per cent) opposed a loan to the Norwegians for purchase of war supplies.

Today, as the survey on the Greek issue shows, the situation is substantially different.

The same nine-month period has witnessed an increase in the number of voters willing to give aid to England even at the risk of war.

Defense Program Is Forum Subject

Atlanta businessmen will have an opportunity to hear a discussion on the effect of the national defense program on southern industry at the first of a new series of forums sponsored by the Emory University school of business administration.

The meeting—open to the general public as well as students—is set for 7:30 o'clock December 9 in the Fishburne building at Emory.

Church Class To Hold 5th Annual 'Fall Frolic'

Fifth annual "Fall Frolic" of the H. Warner Hill class of the Saint Mark Methodist church will be held at 8:15 o'clock tonight in the church auditorium, Peachtree and Fifth streets.

Heading the program will be Albert Armstrong, Ernest Rogers, Rudy Brown, and Beverly Miller. The class orchestra will furnish the music. One of the features will be distribution of attendance prizes.

Lloyd Campbell, in a barbershop across the street, forced his way through the debris and carried Carr to safety. Carr suffered burns and a broken leg.

Earl Hansen, near the scene, fought his way through the flames to rescue Mrs. Ralph Wheeler, trapped in the debris of a beauty shop, one of several businesses in the building. Hansen and Mrs. Wheeler were burned severely.

Albert Doolin, an eyewitness, reported he was standing near by when he heard a rumbling "as though a freight train had crushed into the structure." A sheet of flame swept up and the wall began to crumble.

Earl Claghorn said that 15 minutes after the explosion he could hear voices calling for help.

E. J. Jammie, a salesman, who aided in the rescue, reported that he doubted whether any persons could be saved from the flames.

The structure housed several stores and was used for storing potatoes.

MYSTERIOUS BLAST WRECKS POWDER STORAGE BUILDING TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A black powder storage building at the du Pont powder plant exploded mysteriously today. Company officials said no one was injured.

A building, 30 by 40 feet, was blown to bits.

It was isolated from the rest of the powder company by earthworks and was used entirely for storage purposes. No one was inside.

A company official said "we have no reason to believe the explosion was caused by sabotage." Du Pont is located on the outskirts of Fort Lewis, the northwest's largest military post.

Prison Camp Site Hearing Continued

Hearing on an injunction that is barring construction of the city's new $70,000 addition to a prison farm was continued yesterday until December 19 in DeKalb county superior court by Judge James C. Davis.

Motion for continuance was made by the plaintiff, 15 property holders near the site of the new camp at Constitution avenue and McDonough road.

It was accepted by the defendants, the city of Atlanta, when it was agreed construction engineers could place roofing on the building, but go no further. This will insure that the portion already constructed will not be destroyed.

Wally May Enter Nursing Home To Undergo Dental Operation.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 28.—(AP)—An informed source said today the Duke and Duchess of Windsor probably will go to Miami next month in order that the duchess may enter a nursing home to undergo a dental operation.

The Windsors have not visited the United States since Edward abdicated the British throne in order that he might wed the American-born duchess.

The couple may leave about December 10, the source indicated.

If the trip is made, it was emphasized, the visit at Miami will be of a private nature.

The duke and duchess have talked frequently of making the 200-mile journey to the United States, but war-time restrictions on travel outside the British empire limit trips to those of a necessary nature.

The duchess was advised to enter the nursing home because of a recurrence of tooth trouble, which had given her much pain up until a month ago.

Of late it had been thought the ailment was cured and a trip to the mainland would be unnecessary.

DUTCH ISLAND REPORTED INVADED BY NAZIS—Here is an airview of Willemstad, Curacao, Dutch West Indies, near where, the New York World-Telegram reports, Germans landing from a raider attempted to blow the oil refineries. The attack is said to have occurred July 28, but rigid censorship had kept the news from the rest of the world. According to the World-Telegram, the attack was repulsed and 35 Germans killed or wounded.

German Raid In West Indies Is Reported

Attack on Dutch Oil Refineries at Curacao Is Repulsed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The New York World-Telegram says a German landing party from a raider operating in the Caribbean was repulsed by British forces at Curacao, Dutch East Indies, when the Nazis attempted to destroy valuable oil refineries there.

The paper, quoting an unidentified eyewitness, says the Germans invaded Curacao the night of July 28 and that British land forces and ships from two armed tankers in the harbor killed or wounded 35 Germans.

This informant says strict censorship kept the invasion a secret because England has insisted she is supreme in the West Indies and also because of suspicion that residents of the Dutch colony had aided the raiders.

From Nazi Raider.

The paper says the invaders were supposed to have come from the German raider which sank the British freighters King John and Davision last July 10, about 240 miles northeast of the Virgin Islands.

Survivors of the British ships have said the raider was disguised as a Swedish ship with the name "Narvik" painted on her sides.

The informant said he learned of the attack when he drove a crew member of one of the tankers to a pier. The World-Telegram quotes him as follows:

"Just after dark, . . . one of the gun crew (from a tanker) said he wanted to go back to his ship. I offered to drive him down. We were about a half-mile from the dock when a Dutch officer, with a revolver strapped on his hip, stopped us, flashed a light in our faces and said he wanted to use my car.

"I looked at the revolver and told him I'd be glad to help him out. He wanted to move his family away from the gasoline tanks. It was pretty good sign that the Nazi raider might have put a landing party on the island.

Rumors of Attack.

"The gunner got out and hurried on to his tanker. . . . The docks were alive with reports that a Nazi landing party already was heading that way for an attack on the refinery.

". . . As the tanker was moving around so it could train its guns on the shore, the shooting started. There was murder going on—machineguns and hand grenades. Then the tankers began firing into the men. I knew that it must be really serious when the tankers were firing, for every time they shot they were running the chance of blowing themselves to pieces by igniting a gas pocket that might have formed while they were taking on gasoline.

"The fighting stopped almost as suddenly as it started.

"The next day officials seemed to agree that 35 Germans had been killed or wounded."

Greeks Seize Argyrocystron In Bitter Fight

Italians was said to be retreating north.

Meanwhile, a "considerable" Italian force on the Albanian northern front tonight was reported cut off by Greek cavalry and preparing to surrender or flee across the Jugoslav frontier.

According to front reports reaching Athens, it was believed impossible that the Italians could fight their way out of the trap since larger forces of Greeks were rushing up to aid the cavalry.

As the Greeks fought desperately to keep the Italians in retreat, an appeal to the United States for aid was made by Constantino Mandiakakis, minister of public safety and right-hand man of Premier John Metaxas.

"We address ourselves particularly to the great, strong, liberal union of the United States of America and all the peoples of the Americas, asking them to reinforce us by sending necessary materials and supplies in order to bring to a successful conclusion the great and strenuous fight we have undertaken," he said.

Britain's Navy Deals Heavy Blow to Italy

enough to put it out of action a moment, the report stated.

Otherwise, except for loss of one fighter plane, the British got off scot-free and shot down two big Italian seagoing bombers, it was asserted.

The British aircraft carrier Ark Royal was so heavily attacked that at one time she disappeared behind the splashes of 30 bombs, but she came up firing all her guns without a scar, the admiralty related.

The British battle cruiser Renown, 32,000 tons, was the only other British vessel mentioned by name. Rated at 29 knots, she tried vainly to bring the one old and one new Italian battleship into action, the admiralty asserted, but the Italians were too speedy.

The swordfish planes caught up with the newer one, however. The communiqué did not say whether their torpedo sank her.

This brings to four the number of Italian battleships which the British assert have been damaged by torpedo planes, and leaves Italy with only two serviceable battleships, by the British count. The others were reported hit in a raid on Italy's Taranto naval base November 11.

(The Italian high command's story of the engagement Wednesday afternoon said that two British cruisers were damaged by shells and three other British warships, one a battleship, were bombed. The Italians listed their own casualties as "serious" damage to a destroyer and one poor hit on a cruiser.)

The text of the British communiqué:

"It is now possible to give an account of the naval engagement and pursuit of Italian forces in the Mediterranean yesterday afternoon."

ENEMY REPORTED.

"Soon after 10 o'clock yesterday morning our forces operating to the westward of Sardinia received reports from our reconnaissance aircraft that enemy forces consisting of two battleships and a large number of cruisers and destroyers were at sea about 75 miles to the northeastward."

"Our forces at once increased to full speed and altered course to close with the enemy in the hope of bringing him to action."

"A few minutes after noon, four enemy cruisers were sighted hull down over the horizon."

"At 12:21 p. m. our advanced light units opened fire. The enemy cruisers replied, but almost immediately they turned away and retired to the northeastward at high speed under cover of smoke."

"At 12:50 p. m., two enemy battleships accompanied by cruisers were sighted. The battleships were one ship of the Littorio class and one of the Cavour class.

OPEN FIRE.

"The enemy heavy ships opened fire on our cruisers. These were forced by the much heavier metal of the enemy to make a slight turn away, but within a few minutes the enemy battleships themselves turned away and our cruisers at once resumed their pursuit of the Italian cruisers.

"Our slower units rapidly fell astern but the battle cruiser Renown, (Captain C. E. B. Simeon, R. N., flying the flag of Vice Admiral Sir James Somerville), did her utmost to bring the enemy heavy ships to action, but was unable to do so owing to the speed at which the enemy retired.

"By 1:10 p. m. the chase, having been carried to within a few miles of the enemy's coast, was abandoned.

"By this time, the enemy had scattered, and owing to the extreme range and the smoke screens used by them, no damage to their ships was observed then."

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE.

"Subsequent air reconnaissance, however, indicated that considerable damage must have been caused by our gunfire before the enemy reached the shelter of his coast or disappeared behind his smoke screen.

"One enemy cruiser, believed of the eight-inch-gun type, was seriously on fire aft.

"One destroyer of the Gregale class was seen to be down by the stern, listing heavily and stopping. One other enemy destroyer was listing slightly and was losing way.

"Aircraft of the fleet arm of H. M. S. Ark Royal, Captain C. S. Holland, R. N., attacked repeatedly during the pursuit and afterward.

"One force of Swordfish aircraft carried out a torpedo attack on the enemy battleships, and one torpedo was seen to hit a battleship of the new and powerful (35,000-ton) Littorio class.

"Another force of Swordfish attacked an enemy unit consisting of three 18-inch-gun cruisers. One torpedo hit was almost certainly obtained on the rear ship—a 10,000-ton ship of the Bolzano class—and the leading ship of this formation was observed to have reduced speed immediately after this attack.

CRUISER DAMAGED.

"A force of Skuas (naval dive-bombing planes) dive-bombed a formation of three six-inch-gun cruisers of the Condottieri class. Two very near misses were obtained, and it appears that one of the enemy cruisers was damaged.

"All our aircraft returned safely from these operations.

"The only damage to our forces was to H. M. S. Berwick (a 10,000-ton cruiser), Captain G. L. Warren, R. N., which received two hits. The damage is slight, and this ship is ready for service.

"In this ship, one officer and six ratings were killed. Two ratings were seriously wounded and seven slightly wounded. The next of kin of casualties are being informed as soon as possible.

"At 2:35 p. m. our forces were

Planes Blast Liverpool in Wave on Wave

Nazis Drop Fire, Explosive Bombs for Several Hours.

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Friday)—(AP)—German bombers delivered one of their heaviest attacks last night on the northwestern port of Liverpool, authoritative sources acknowledged early today.

(The Germans said Liverpool was "burning.")

Flying in waves and assaulting the city for several hours, the raiders dropped both incendiary and high explosive bombs on the city and the surrounding Mersey-side district.

The British Press Association said, however, that a heavy anti-aircraft barrage kept many of the attackers away and that damage was chiefly to "house property."

One bomb struck near a public shelter. "A few" deaths were reported.

London's own anti-aircraft boomed intermittently after midnight. Here, the German air force reverted to the use of heavy bombers, while other raiders fanned out over Liverpool, East Anglia, the Midlands and both southeast and northeast England.

But if the shift of tactics resulted in heavier bombardment it could not be ascertained amidst the continuous pounding of barrage guns of all caliber. In that did with the raid an hour and a half old no bomb explosions had been heard.

A communiqué of the air and home security ministries reported this score:

Five invading fighters shot down.

Six British fighters lost.

Long-range German guns on the French invasion coast dueled with British coastal batteries during the day for about two hours, the German fire being directed by a "spotter" plane, which dodged anti-aircraft fire.

The British described "a heavy and successful" attack by their bombers Wednesday night on Cologne, Germany. The air ministry news service said that for two hours RAF bombers plunged explosives and incendiaries into the railway network on both sides of Hohenzollern bridge over the Rhine there.

ATTACKED.

"At 4:40 p. m. our forces were again attacked by enemy aircraft. On this occasion the attack was made by 15 bombers in three waves. Our fleet air arm fighters again intercepted them, but some of the enemy aircraft were able to carry out their attack, and H. M. S. Ark Royal disappeared from sight behind the splashes from about 30 bombs falling close to her."

"She emerged from the spray with all guns firing furiously, having sustained neither damage nor casualties."

"During these operations, one Cant (Italian) 506 three-engined float plane and one (Italian) RO-43 float plane were shot down. One of our fighters did not return from intercepting the enemy bombing attacks."

Throng's View Coffins of Iron Guard Leaders

20 More Adherents of King Carol Reported Slain.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 29.—(P)—Despite the blackout, thousands of men, women and children stood before a church early today awaiting a chance to view the sealed, green-painted caskets of Cornelius Codreanu and his 31 associates.

It was estimated that thousands already had passed through the church. A continuous Greek Orthodox mass was being said for Codreanu, founder of the Iron Guard, who was killed with his colleagues two years ago tomorrow.

Iron Guardsmen have assassinated more than 64 aides of King Carol in retaliation during the past two days.

Late reports of how these 64 prisoners met their death say Iron Guardsmen used pick axes, then threw the bodies of the victims into the graves from which the bones of Codreanu and his fellow "martyrs" previously had been removed.

The two-ton slab of concrete said to have covered the graves then was replaced.

Dispatches from Budapest said 20 more adherents of King Carol's regime were reported slain at the Rumanian oil center of Ploesti, and 26 Iron Guardsmen involved in the Jilava prison purge of 64 prisoners were said to have committed suicide.

Unconfirmed Budapest dispatches said the Iron Guards had seized police headquarters in the capital and had occupied the American-built telephone building. These reports could not be confirmed.

Analysis Shows U. S. May Enter War in 1941

America, Already Half in, Might Go All the Way—Keemle.

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE.
United Press Analyst.

It all comes down to this: Is the United States going to get into the war or isn't it?

Recent statements by prominent Britons and Americans have helped to clarify the issue.

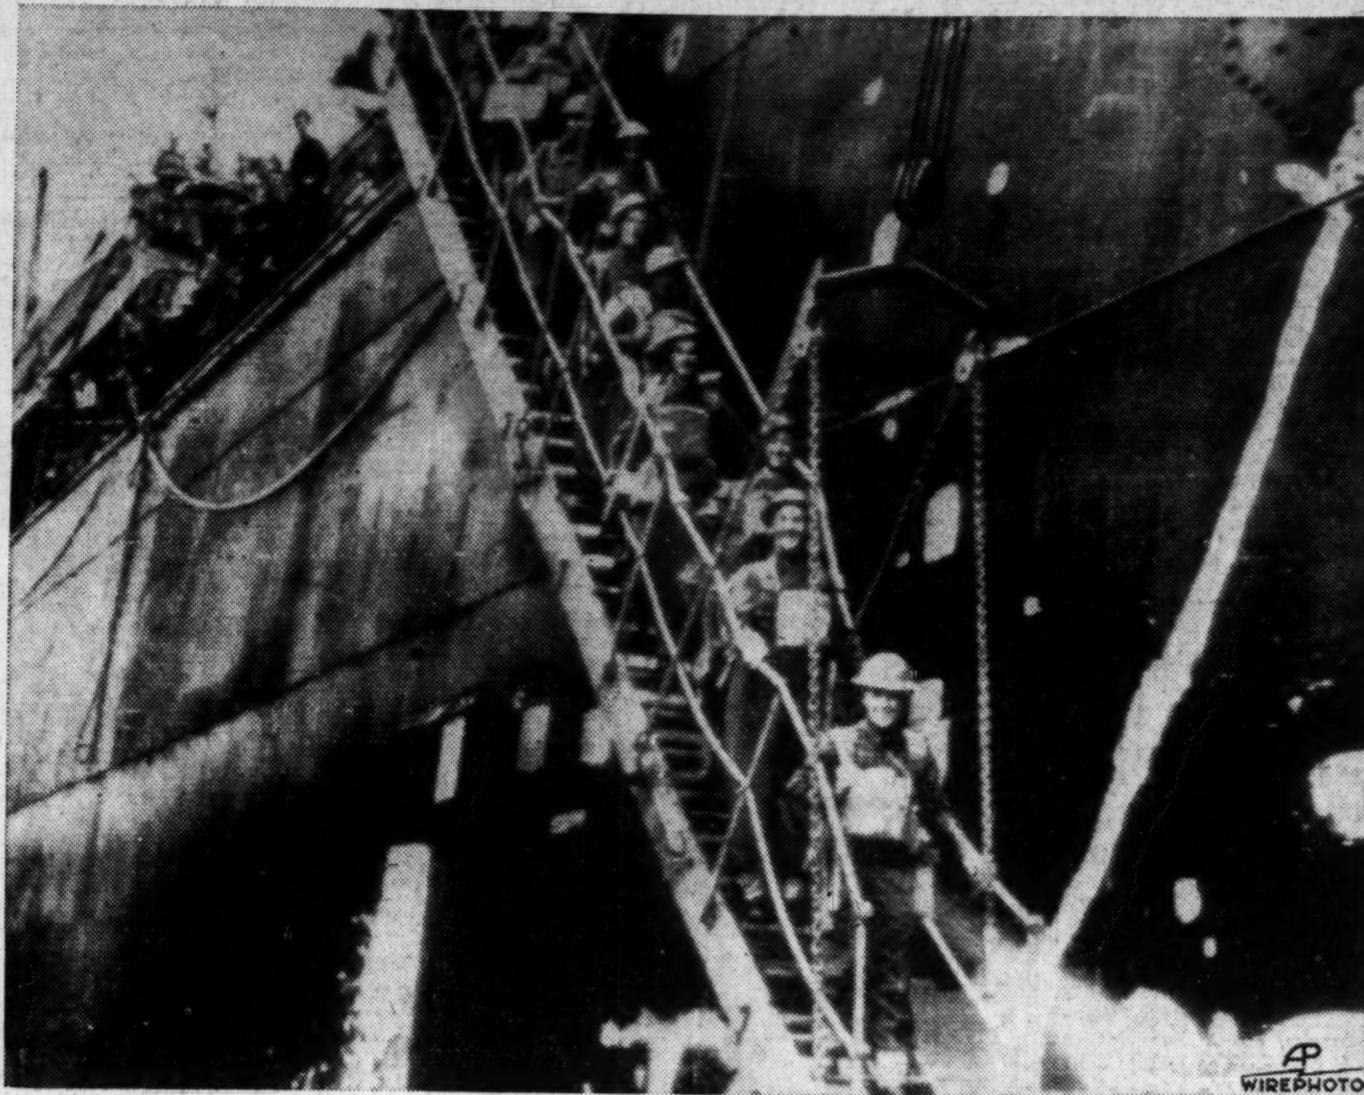

Propaganda and censorship aside, enough has been said to indicate that Great Britain's position is bad enough. What has been behind every statement of the last few weeks, both by prominent Britons themselves and by their more ardent American supporters, is that Britain will be sunk if the United States does not come to the rescue.

There is no other explanation for the statement of Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, saying that Britain will run out of funds for the purchase of war supplies in this country within about six months, and must have loans or credit—from the United States, of course.

That would mean repeal of the Johnson act barring loans to defaulting nations and of the neutrality act. Already the question of their repeal has been mooted in Congress and is being actively promoted by British propaganda. The White House has not perceptibly frowned but has left it to Congress to make the first move.

The result may be that the United States, already half in the war, may become an active beligerent. The British do not want our "boys" over there, for the present. The British army itself is stagnated and idle—all dressed up and no place to go. Later on, when and if Britain is ready to take the offensive with our aid, she may ask for an American expeditionary force for an invasion of Europe.

For the present, the call is for warships and airplanes first, then merchant shipping to offset the staggering losses to Britain's supply lines caused by Germany's sea warfare. Money, we are told, will have to be advanced to cover these needs.

AID FOR GREECE—The soldiers of Greece seem to be doing all right by themselves these days, but, taking no chances of a lack of manpower, Britain has speeded troops to aid her courageous little ally. Here British warriors land at an undisclosed Greek port to join the war raging on Albanian fronts.

Best Dice Tossers Will Get Into Army

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 28.—(P)—Dice, often a potent factor in the redistribution of wealth, will do acrobatics under the kind guidance of six Negro youths tomorrow in deciding a matter of $30 a month and free lodging.

This "legalized" game came about in this way:

When a call for four Negroes to fill the first quota for selective service went out, there were plenty of volunteers here. So, after picking Toby Hall as No. 1 because he was first to volunteer, the dice game was instituted to decide the other three to fill the $30 a month and free lodging.

Of the six youths, only Joseph Perrin admitted he owned dice when asked by Mrs. G. R. Stevens, chief clerk for Draft Board No. 1. "Yassum," he said, "an' if those bones is hot, T's in de army."

Briton Disputes Statements on War Conditions

Says Story Will 'Cause Surprise on This Side of Ocean.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(P)—The diplomatic correspondent of the London Times, in an article published today, says that statements in a recent Associated Press dispatch painted a picture of conditions in England in terms which are "certainly open to question."

The Associated Press dispatch referred to was written by Dr. Middleton and said Britain now was passing through its darkest days since the evacuation of Dunkirk. This statement, said the Times correspondent, will "cause surprise on this side of the Tech dining hall."

The guest of honor will be Dr. Arthur H. Compton, winner of the Nobel prize for his work in the cosmic ray field. Immediately following the dinner, initiates and members will adjourn to the Tech auditorium to hear Dr. Compton's address, "Physics Views the Future."

Atlantans who will be initiated are C. C. Davis, G. H. Graham, W. C. Gregory, J. R. Hanahan, H. J. Kammick, T. F. Saffold, W. T. Sams, R. A. Schulze, W. L. Sullivan and H. E. Wright.

Strike Threat Is Hinted by British Union

Engineering Workers Hold Key Places in Armament Plants.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(P)—A stirring appeal from a 48-year-old dockyards worker to the governing body of the powerful Amalgamated Engineering Union quashed the threat of a strike in war industries tonight.

A move for a half-day strike December 14 to determine by vote the numerical strength back of a demand for a 5-cent-per-hour increase, was dropped by the national committee after gray-haired Owen Jenkins urged mediation.

"Is a few bob all that matters in this world?" he asked.

Telling the five-hour-long meeting he had two sons fighting for Britain, he continued:

"When they come home, what could I say to them if I had struck while they were fighting?"

The union committee's action was taken against this background on Britain's home front:

The cost of living index rose to 92 per cent, as of November 1, over the level of July, 1914. Food prices were 72 per cent above the 1914 scale.

Informers forecast additional control of the food supply through action involving wages, prices and marketing policy.

The food minister, Lord Woolton, warned Britons that meat imports (largely Argentine and Canadian) might be reduced to conserve shipping space for war materiel, and that apples, apricots, grapes and bananas "must disappear for a time from our tables."

CONFESSES, THEN DIES.
Al Roebuck, 54, auto camp operator at Sebastopol, Cal., rose in his pew at the tabernacle of the Assembly of God, and said: "The Lord has saved me from sin. I am ready to go if He should call me home." Then he slumped back in his seat. He was dead when a physician examined him.

The two-ton slab of concrete said to have covered the graves then was replaced.

Dispatches from Budapest said 20 more adherents of King Carol's regime were reported slain at the Rumanian oil center of Ploesti, and 26 Iron Guardsmen involved in the Jilava prison purge of 64 prisoners were said to have committed suicide.

Unconfirmed Budapest dispatches said the Iron Guards had seized police headquarters in the capital and had occupied the American-built telephone building. These reports could not be confirmed.

Analysis Shows U. S. May Enter War in 1941

America, Already Half in, Might Go All the Way—Keemle.

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE.
United Press Analyst.

It all comes down to this: Is the United States going to get into the war or isn't it?

Recent statements by prominent Britons and Americans have helped to clarify the issue.

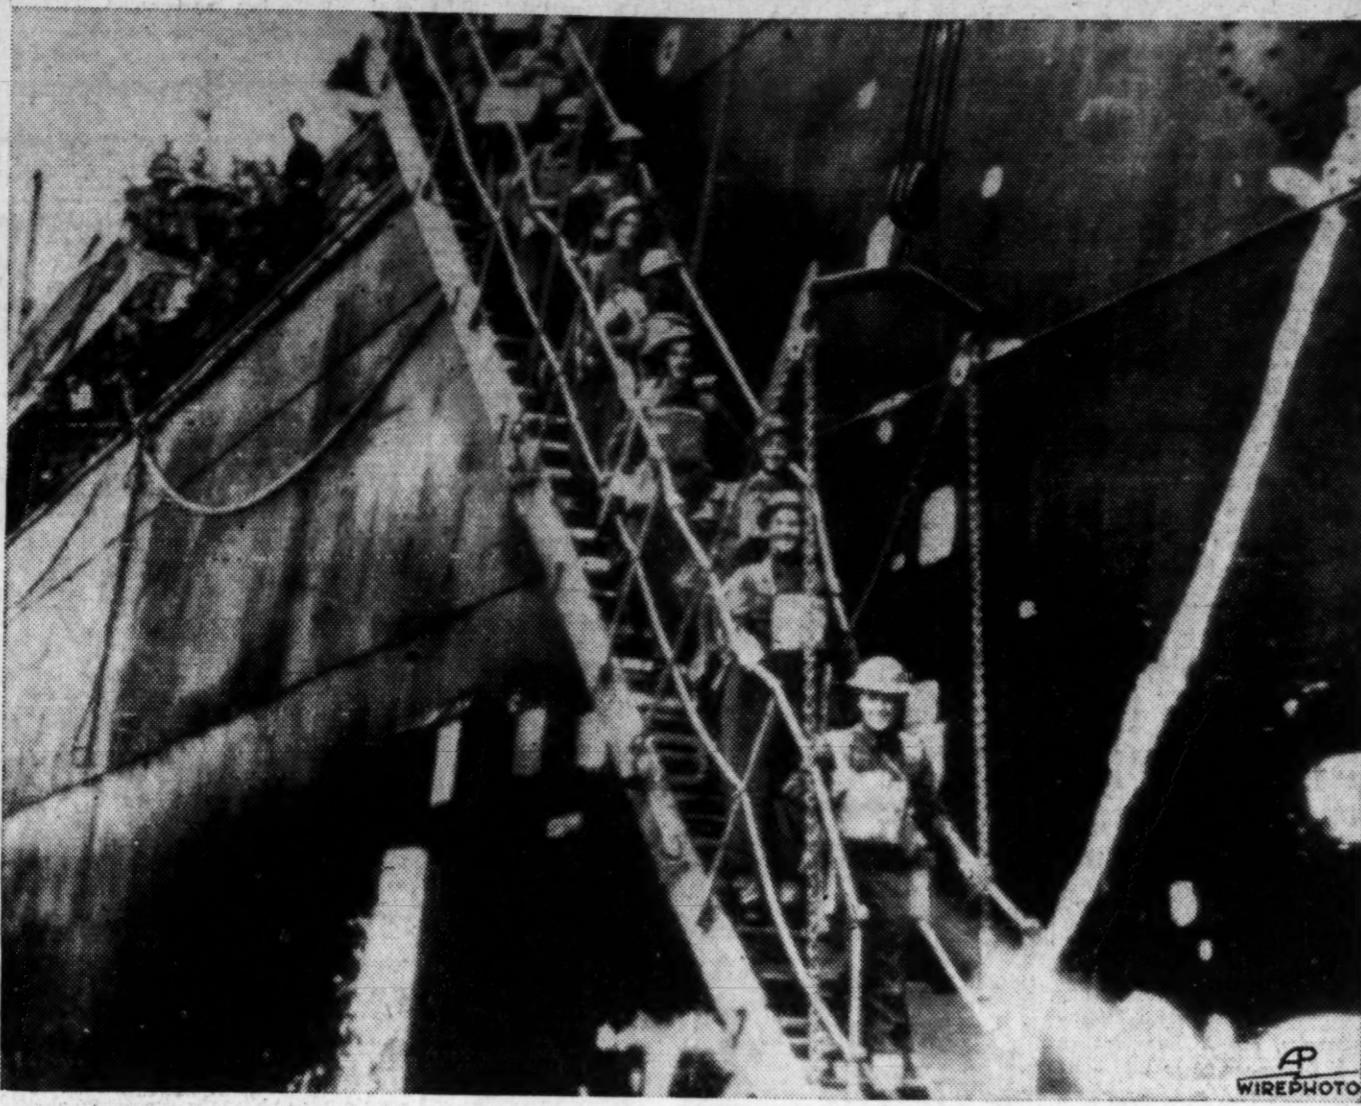

Propaganda and censorship aside, enough has been said to indicate that Great Britain's position is bad enough. What has been behind every statement of the last few weeks, both by prominent Britons themselves and by their more ardent American supporters, is that Britain will be sunk if the United States does not come to the rescue.

There is no other explanation for the statement of Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, saying that Britain will run out of funds for the purchase of war supplies in this country within about six months, and must have loans or credit—from the United States, of course.

That would mean repeal of the Johnson act barring loans to defaulting nations and of the neutrality act. Already the question of their repeal has been mooted in Congress and is being actively promoted by British propaganda. The White House has not perceptibly frowned but has left it to Congress to make the first move.

The result may be that the United States, already half in the war, may become an active belligerent. The British do not want our "boys" over there, for the present. The British army itself is stagnated and idle—all dressed up and no place to go. Later on, when and if Britain is ready to take the offensive with our aid, she may ask for an American expeditionary force for an invasion of Europe.

For the present, the call is for warships and airplanes first, then merchant shipping to offset the staggering losses to Britain's supply lines caused by Germany's sea warfare. Money, we are told, will have to be advanced to cover these needs.

AID FOR GREECE—The soldiers of Greece seem to be doing all right by themselves these days, but, taking no chances of a lack of manpower, Britain has speeded troops to aid her courageous little ally. Here British warriors land at an undisclosed Greek port to join the war raging on Albanian fronts.

Best Dice Tossers Will Get Into Army

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Dice, often a potent factor in the redistribution of wealth, will do acrobatics under the skillful guidance of six Negro youths tomorrow in deciding a matter of $30 a month and free lodging.

The "legit" game was instituted about in this way:

When a call for four Negroes to fill the first quota for selective service went out, there were plenty of volunteers here. So, after picking Toby Hall as No. 1 because he was first to volunteer, the dice game was instituted to decide the other three to fill the quota.

Of the six youths, only Joseph Perrin admitted he owned dice when asked by Mrs. G. R. Stevens, chief clerk for Draft Board No. 1. "Yassum," he said, "an' if those bones is hot, I's in de army."

Briton Disputes Statements on War Conditions

Says Story Will 'Cause Surprise on This Side' of Ocean.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The diplomatic correspondent of the London Times, in an article published today, says that statements in a recent Associated Press dispatch painted a picture of conditions in England in terms which are "certainly open to question."

The Associated Press dispatch referred to was written by Drew Middleton and said Britain now was passing through its darkest days since the evacuation of Dunkirk. This statement, said the Times correspondent, will "cause surprise on this side of the Atlantic."

The Times article also disagreed with Middleton's statement that present British censorship methods are reminiscent of those employed in France before her surrender. It was argued by the Times writer that British censorship permits open and direct criticism to an extent impossible in France.

The result may be that the United States, already half in the war, may become an active belligerent. The British do not want our "boys" over there, for the present. The British army itself is stagnated and idle—all dressed up and no place to go. Later on, when and if Britain is ready to take the offensive with our aid, she may ask for an American expeditionary force for an invasion of Europe.

For the present, the call is for warships and airplanes first, then merchant shipping to offset the staggering losses to Britain's supply lines caused by Germany's sea warfare. Money, we are told, will have to be advanced to cover these needs.

Priorities Unit May Not Apply Rule to Planes

Board Reaches Decision But Withholds Announcement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(UP)—The National Defense Priorities Board tonight reached a decision on whether the aircraft industry should be compelled to give orders for military planes precedence over commercial aviation requirements, but withheld a formal announcement until tomorrow.

It was understood, however, that the board had decided not to invoke the priority rule. It reached its decision after a conference with President Roosevelt.

The board is expected to issue a statement of policy setting forth the position enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt Tuesday—that the need for military planes comes first—and expressing the hope that the problem can be settled without invoking priorities powers vested in the board by the President.

The statement also is expected to voice the hope that the aircraft industry will follow the policy of other industries working on defense orders—meeting Army and Navy needs as requested.

The board has yet to invoke its priority powers.

Strike Threat Is Hinted by British Union

Engineering Workers Hold Key Places in Armament Plants.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A stirring appeal from a 48-year-old dockyards worker to the governing body of the powerful Amalgamated Engineering Union quashed the threat of a strike in war industries tonight.

A move for a half-day strike December 14 to determine by vote the numerical strength back of a demand for a 5-cent-per-hour increase, was dropped by the national committee after gray-haired Owen Jenkins urged mediation.

"Is a few bob all that matters in this world?" he asked.

Telling the five-hour-long meeting he had two sons fighting for Britain, he continued:

"When they come home, what could I say to them if I had struck while they were fighting?"

The union committee's action was taken against this background:

The cost of living index rose to 92 per cent, as of November 1, over the level of July, 1914. Food prices were 72 per cent above the 1914 scale.

Informed sources forecast additional control of the food supply through action involving wages, prices and marketing policy. The food minister, Lord Woolton, warned Britons that meat importations (largely Argentine and Canadian) might be reduced to conserve shipping space for war materiel, and that apples, apricots, grapes and bananas "must disappear for a time from our tables."

CONFESSES, THEN DIES.
Al Roebuck, 54, auto camp operator at Sebastopol, Cal., rose in his pew at the tabernacle of the Assembly of God, and said: "The Lord has saved me from sin. I am ready to go if He should call me home." Then he slumped back in his seat. He was dead when a physician examined him.

U. S. To Train Troops for Any Kind of Climate

Doctor Urges That Seasoning of Recruits Start in Fall.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE,
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Climate, for the first time in the nation's history, can be handled scientifically for the benefit of the millions of young Americans who face conscription.

The possibilities are told by Dr. Charles L. Singer, a World War medical officer, in the journal of the American Medical Association.

The problem is the old one of hardening a man to the weather. But this time, the doctors know more about the weather and more of the unseen differences in men, under which one man may die makes a harder man of his buddy.

They now have laboratory tests to find the differences. They have learned enough already so that Dr. Singer says recruits starting in April under the present conscription plan will require at least ten months to obtain the adaptability to weather that could be acquired in five months by draftees beginning in October.

This is for ordinary climatic hardening. But Dr. Singer contends with both Americans to defend, the new troops will require adaptation to all possible kinds of weather from arctic to tropic. The weather differences in Uncle Sam's possible "Defense" zones, he thinks, will have to be taken into account in troop movements.

Two Basic Changes.

Two basic changes in the human body are involved. In hot weather, there is lower muscular tone and diminished basal metabolism, or heat production. In cold, there is increased muscular tone and higher basal metabolism.

Normally these changes in the body's machinery take considerable time, weeks or a month or two. This is because normally the changes take place with the slow change of seasons.

In a sudden change, such as rapid movement of troops from temperate to sub-arctic conditions, a sharp, prolonged rise in vasoconstriction, which is shrinkage in size of the blood vessels near the skin, is forced on an unprepared body.

One of the places where this vasoconstriction occurs is the membranes of the nose. Unaccustomed, prolonged and repeated constrictions there result in loss of ability of the nasal membranes to protect against respiratory infections.

In trench warfare, men with these infections, Dr. Singer says, were kept a short distance in the rear and considered as reserves, and returned to the front line in seven to ten days.

But in a war movement such men would be lost completely as effective fighters.

An abrupt climatic change, he adds, may bring to the fore latent diseases, such as arthritis, tuberculosis, heart disease and respiratory infections. Not only may latent diseases come forth, but general resistance to minute infections tends to be lowered.

He cites the Russians in Finland as an example. These Russians, as a matter of fact, had received part of the climate training which science now knows is needed for a campaign such as theirs in winter in Finland. They had been adapted to sudden changes in the Russian steam baths.

They were hardy. But they had not been trained also for prolonged cold, and that was one of the things which defeated them in a number of the expeditions.

In the rout of the British at Stenker, Norway, Dr. Singer says, inadequate clothing for northern Norway was a contributing factor.

To train for climate, Dr. Singer offers several techniques. First is to start the recruits in the fall.

Next, reverse the entire system under which Americans have been trained in summer maneuvers in the north and winter in the south. This would result in men trained both for subarctic rigor and tropical mugginess.

Then hydrotherapy. This starts with surf or river bathing where possible. It continues with cool and gradually cooled showers as daily routine. It concludes with the Scotch system of alternating hot and cold streams of water.

Low temperature of 65 in winter barracks is recommended, because apartment house statistics show that cold increase with rise in indoor temperature above 70.

Most Effective Fabrics.

Then come the methods of reading the temperature of the skin under clothing, to determine the most effective fabrics for uniforms.

In the more technical list is "Erben's test." A person bends forward for a certain period, and if the pulse afterward slows down by more than 10 beats a minute, it is a sign he is a poor risk in climatic exposure unless hardened.

This pulse result shows that the individual's body is erratic in control of the constriction of blood vessels necessary to meet weather changes.

There are significant blood tests which show whether the soldier is acclimated. The signs here are changes in amount of phosphorus, calcium, sugar and some other factors.

Finally air conditioning makes possible artificially controlled climatic testing laboratories. They would do two important things.

First, make it possible to select men for special tasks, and second, furnish a yardstick for training others.

"Seven million dollars," says Dr.

Singer, "has been appropriated for an army aviation test station at Fairbanks, Alaska, to study the behavior of airplane motors in arctic climates."

"This is a very necessary establishment, yet little provision has been made for testing the climatic adaptability of the most important military machine—the human body."

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP)—When Miss Hazel Olson shoved on her brakes today for a red light on a busy drive along Lake Michigan, her automobile jumped into the curb, slid across a sidewalk, angled over a grassy stretch, slipped through a five-foot hedge opening, bounced down a flight of 10 steps, skidded across another sidewalk, bumped down three more steps and dropped into the lake, coming to rest on a sunken rock.

Miss Olson was able to open the door of her submerged car and park policemen came to her rescue with a life preserver.

"Time Will Doubt of Rome"

Earth! render back from out thy breast
A remnant of our Spartan dead!
Of the three hundred grant but three
To make a new Thermopylae.

Thus Lord Byron in the early 1800's—a prayer for Greece, for which he also fought.

He stood at Achilles' tomb—"and heard Troy doubted: time will doubt of Rome."

History marches its timeless legions again through the valleys and over the plains of Greece. His prayer for a remnant of that Spartan dead may yet again be heard. For Greece cannot stand alone.

The Greco-Italian war is less than a month old. The Greeks, fighting the fight that tradition dictated, have driven the Duce's best troops from their border positions. But unless they can drive the Italians completely from Albania it must seriously be doubted they can throw Mussolini's boast, that they would be crushed, back in his teeth. For they are, at most, 600,000 against the millions Rome has said it could muster.

The Grecian army has been on the offensive almost from the start of the campaign, which, under every standard of military loss ratios, presupposes casualties greater than those sustained by the now retreating Italian forces. With due allowance for the apparently heavy ratio of Italian losses, the Greek casualties will at least equal those of the "invaders." Since Italy can expend manpower at a greater rate, it is easy to see that the Greek campaign could within a very few months follow the pattern of the Finnish war.

If this is to be prevented, Great Britain will have to throw in whatever resources in men, supplies and planes it can possibly place in the campaign. There are hints that heavy British troop movements have already taken place, and there are all indications that the RAF is establishing large bases for effective action in Greece and Crete.

But until we know more of the extent of this assistance to the little nation, it will be impossible to view the campaign in anything but the most pessimistic light despite the valiant and brilliant military successes now being reported.

If Great Britain is to help Greece to the necessary extent, that country must in turn look to this nation to speed the flow of materials enough to counterbalance the dangerous game the Empire must play in Greece. For to assist Greece, Great Britain must weaken her forces in Egypt and Palestine before effective replacements can arrive from England, Australia and India. There is the gamble. Beyond that, this gamble requires a heavy drain from the already hard-pressed Navy to keep open the supply routes to Greece and to protect the convoys from Italian submarines and motor-torpedo boats operating from Sicily, East Africa and the Dodecanese islands.

The time for America's decision draws closer. We know, as Byron wrote, that "time will doubt of Rome." Must it doubt also of America?

With modern war so devastating and unprofitable, a condition arises in which we think of all sides as underdogs.

No Need To Dodge

Postmaster Lon Livingston estimates there are approximately 400 alien residents of Atlanta who have not yet complied with the law requiring them to register with the federal government. The deadline for such registration is December 26, after which an unregistered alien may be liable to a six-month prison term and a fine of $1,000.

The registration office is in the Poplar street lobby of the old post office building and it is open all day. Already 1,658 have reported there for registration and finger-printing.

There is no conceivable reason why the alien legally in this country and not engaged in criminal activities should hesitate to register. Honest men and women conduct their affairs openly and it is only the tricksters, the enemy agents and the criminals, who should have any reluctance to register.

It is possible there are some aliens here who, because of unfamiliarity with the English language, or lack of direct contact with normal Atlanta life, still do not know they should register. It should be the vital concern of any other aliens, or any citizens, who know of possible cases of this nature, to carefully explain the law to the individuals concerned and assist them, in any way possible, to go to the Poplar street office and comply with the law. That is but an exercise of good citizenship, of good neighborliness and charitable helpfulness.

Sport page announcements of a January fight refer to Joe Louis as undefeated champion, so we guess they're throwing out those political appearances.

The Logan-Walter Bill

The Logan-Walter bill was passed on Tuesday by the United States senate, by a vote of 27 to 25. While it is altogether possible that there are features to the measure which have not been generally understood, yet its general purpose, as described in Washington news dispatches, seems to be so just and logical it is difficult to understand how 25 senate votes could be mustered against it.

Briefly, the bill is intended to standardize the procedure of governmental agencies, such as the Labor Board, the Securities Commission, etc. It requires that public notice be given, and hearings held, on any ruling by such agencies which substantially affects anyone, and makes the legality and constitutionality of such rulings subject to review by the courts.

In other words, it puts a restraint upon the bureaucratic powers of various government agencies by subjecting them to the supervision of the regularly constituted agencies of justice. It is designed to protect American citizens from violation of their constitutional rights by agencies or bureaucrats, now not subject to the basic law of the land.

It would seem obvious that any citizen, individual or corporate, is entitled to the protection of the courts against violation of constitutional rights, whether by individual, by lower court, by legislature or by any agency of the federal government itself.

If such protection is denied the citizen, the federal government is no longer amenable to the democratic process and becomes, instead of the servant of the people, the dictator of their affairs.

It is reported that President Roosevelt will be asked to veto the measure and opponents are confident that they can sustain that veto. In all probability they are right.

If, however, the President does not exercise that power of veto, it will be, undoubtedly, because of some as yet unexposed fault in the measure, rather than because of its basic purpose. Then, if the veto is used, a perfected and more desirable measure to accomplish the purposes of the Walter-Logan bill should be quickly prepared, introduced and enacted into law.

For there must be no danger to the democratic principles of this nation because of excessive power in the hands of uncontrolled governmental bureaus.

Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, thinks the electoral college might as well be abolished. But this is defeatist talk. After all, Roosevelt can't go on forever.

Laval says democracy is dead everywhere, but we doubt it. In Minnesota it is proposed to let a fellow named Smith into this year's All-American.

The first faint signs of life appear on the planet Venus. Seen through a powerful telescope, it is as if it were 11 p. m. in a night spot.

With all the bayonets and cannon that bristle on its face, we rather imagine that from afar this planet seems in need of a shave.

Editorial Symposium

LABOR'S PEACE OFFENSIVE

Hope that the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations may bury the hatchet in a peacetime powwow is expressed as Philip Murray takes over the CIO presidency from retired John L. Lewis, whom the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH calls "the man who split the Illinois miners before he split all labor."

There is no doubt that labor peace is more essential today than it was a year ago, and we are confident that the rank and file of labor itself wants it," says the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL, which sees each group as having a place in American labor and industry and urges the preservation of each "for the safeguarding of labor rights." And the WASHINGTON POST reports that "The effort once more to sink the intra-labor feud after five years of a war that has been wasting alike to labor and the nation may this time make headway.... It is now up to the CIO to accept the AFL offer to meet 'any time, any place'."

"As for ending the factional fight... the chances would seem to be in favor of resumption of negotiations looking to unity," says the NEWARK NEWS, which points out that "Mr. Lewis was unable to carry thousands of his followers into the Willkie camp. In any event, the CIO is at the cross roads of momentous decision respecting its own future." And the NEW YORK TIMES sees hope for labor peace with the words: "Because Mr. Murray obviously prefers the rule of reason to the rule of bad tempers and loud voices, we can probably expect some improvement in his regime" even though his election "does not guarantee a truce."

"Not only is Murray better qualified than Lewis to keep peace between capital and labor, he is more likely than his predecessor to reconcile labor factions," declares the CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER, which looks for "a quieter and more constructive period" under Murray's direction.

And the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN feels Murray "may be counted on to lead labor with informed understanding of the country's economic problems, and to handle the subject of interunion harmony impersonally."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

MANY FINGERS IN THE PIE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.—The singular formlessness of organization is what most strikes the serious investigator of the American air production program. British air production has been improved and maintained under desperately difficult conditions, by close co-ordination of the British air industry under the dynamic leadership of Lord Beaverbrook.

Yet the agencies in charge of American air production are far too loosely co-ordinated themselves to attempt to co-ordinate the industry they are working with. And because of this loose organization, and of the failure to fix final authority and responsibility, real leadership is beyond the power of any individual, even of commanding a figure as William S. Knudsen. The system is roughly as follows:

Authority and responsibility are primarily divided between the Army and Navy procurement divisions and the Defense Advisory Commission. Contrary to the general assumption, the Army and Navy procurement divisions still retain most of the initiative and power, deciding what shall be ordered, negotiating contracts, and checking on the contracts' execution. During the period when orders were being placed, the Defense Commission went beyond its advisory function and did much of the actual work. Now, however, the commission is more strictly limited to giving advice, especially as to methods for speeding up production.

The Defense Commission also has certain special powers, such as its control of priorities. The treasury enters the picture both as the mediator between British purchasers and the defense services, and as the judge of tax problems. The RFC has considerable power over the financing of plant expansions, and there are other, minor fingers in the pie.

Then within the industry, the air plants have been divided between the Army and Navy, Pratt and Whitney to the Navy, Curtiss-Wright to Army, and so on. Finally, in the Defense Commission, the only place where all these dispersed authorities might conceivably be headed up, there is no one to handle air production problems but Knudsen himself, two assistants and a minuscule staff.

SOME ODD SITUATIONS

Some hints of the results of this situation are to be found in a series of odd items of information gathered in the various agencies involved.

Item 1: Since last May a small western factory with 150 excellent machine tools has been advertising in aviation magazines, besieging help from Knudsen's assistants, and canvassing air plant purchasing departments in order to obtain aviation sub-contracts. Knudsen's assistants have tried to help. But like the British before them, most of our air plants have preferred to rely on their accustomed suppliers for additional orders. The regular suppliers, lacking the needed machine tools, have ordered new ones, creating a grave machine tool bottleneck. Meanwhile the small mid-western plant has gone without work. In the opinion of at least one highly qualified expert, there are enough other small plants of the same sort to avoid a machine tool bottleneck if the British system of co-ordinating machine tool use is instituted.

Item 2: Production of one of the Navy's most important planes, the flying boat, was gravely delayed by sub-contract for wings entered into between Consolidated, which makes the flying boats in San Diego and Brewster in Newark. The finished wings had to be transported over a vast distance. Brewster also fell behind in its work. The management of Brewster was persuaded to seek aid from George Chapline, a production man brought in from Curtiss-Wright. But Reuben Fleet, the patriarchal head of Consolidated, fought the Navy bitterly during the straightening out of the sub-contract, and is still conducting a determined rear-guard action against change of almost any sort. A typical incident was the prolonged, embittered debate which arose when the Navy asked Fleet to install a fire-sprinkler system to protect the crucially important unfinished planes in his plant.

Item 3: Fleet and other west coast manufacturers some days ago sent frantic appeals to both Army and Navy, warning that they would be next on the list if the Vultee strike was successful. Yet one of the highest officials in charge of plane procurement confessed only yesterday that "no uniform policy in labor matters has been discussed" between the two departments.

SOME BRIGHT SPOTS

Such are the inevitable penalties of the situation now prevailing. It has also had its bright side. For one thing, despite the complexities of their relationship, the government agencies managed to use the period of comparative calm to work out an intelligent long term plan. For another, the men of the aviation industry have shown none of the stodginess which originally afflicted some of their British colleagues. They can boast a good many such achievements as Pratt and Whitney's increase from a monthly output of 100,000 horsepower to 1,000,000 horsepower.

The trouble is, the government's long term plan now being carried out by the industry calls for a production of only 1,800 planes a month by the middle of next summer, and 3,000 a month by April, 1942. And the war crisis, unfortunately, will not wait on long term plans. It will come in April, 1941, not April, 1942. The question thus arises whether a leading figure in the air industry—such a man as J. H. Kindelberger—should not be drafted into the government, given full authority, and told to put air production on a real war footing.

Have You Heard This One?

It seems there were two Brooklyn dialecticians arguing about the greatness and popularity and fame of the rabbis of their respective synagogues.

Said the first one:

"Why, when Rabbi Cohen preaches there isn't a vacant inch of space in the synagogue. He is known to everyone in Brooklyn, in Greater New York, in all the eastern United States. He is even known to everyone in Europe."

"He goes to England and what happens? The ink isn't dry yet on the hotel register where he signs his name than the telephone rings and the voice says, 'Is that you, Rabbi Cohen? I want you to be King of England. I want you to come and stay at my palace while you are in England.' And so they send the royal coach and my rabbi goes to the palace. They give him the most luxurious suite of rooms in the place. And one morning, he and the King are walking together in the palace grounds and two court dignitaries see them, out a window. And the Lord Chamberlain says, 'Why, who is that walking with the King?' And so the Lord Privy Seal replies, 'Why, you ignoramus, don't you know him? That is Rabbi Cohen of Brooklyn.'

And so the Lord Privy Seal replies, 'Why, you ignoramus, don't you know him? That is Rabbi Cohen of Brooklyn.'

"But that is all Disney characters, or all his scenes. I retain a critical faculty, even viewing his productions.

For instance, I'm infatuated with every one of the Seven Dwarfs but I do not like Snow White at all. She seems to me somewhat wooden in her acting and, in her makeup, more like a painted little hussy than a heroine as sweet as is demanded by a fairy tale.

And I think some of the scenes in the Snow White picture are altogether too gruesome.

Especially those when they are pursuing the Wicked Witch up the mountain and the vultures are soaring around, waiting. Even wicked witches should not be treated as vulture food, quite so directly.

But I can overlook these defects for the sake of the dwarfs and the animals of the woods, for Donald Duck and the Three Little Pigs. I even like the Big Bad Wolf. He looks and acts as a villain should act. So you are never in doubt. And I like the way he turns blue in the face.

Discovers Another Diet Item Which Does Not Stir Him

One of those intriguing three-line fillers which come from who knows where, informs a waiting world that eating carrots increases one's ability to see in "relative darkness."

So what? It sounds to me like insidious propaganda sent out by the Amalgamated Association of Carrot Growers, Inc. But if its board of directors think it's going to make me eat carrots it is misinformed.

I'm probably dumb, but I eat things because I like 'em, if I can get 'em. I cannot work up a perspiration over calories or vitamins, including A, E, I, O, U, and perhaps W and Y. I have never requested an analysis of cream chicken gravy and hot biscuits, but I know they send a man forth with a song on his lips and ambition in his ankles. What's more, they taste good.

In early youth I was informed by elder folks who went to church twice on Sundays and prayer-meeting Wednesday nights and would have been burned at the stake before telling a lie except to a child that eating bread crusts would make my hair curly. That didn't interest me, either. I had no ardent yearning for curly hair. But I understand the little girls consumed their crusts eagerly.

In later years I was told that addiction to spinach in copious quantities would grow hair on my chest and enlarge my biceps and make me want to go out and lick a policeman. But it didn't seem worthwhile. A hirsute torso, as exhibited on the beach, is no first award landscape to my untutored eye and might be expected to tangle up painfully with a zipper on an undershirt, in case somebody puts zippers on undershirts. My biceps are plenty big enough for typewriter pounding and I have nothing against policemen as individuals. Besides, ambition and pugilistic prowess do not always go together. Maybe the policeman I picked would also be a spinach eater. In which case he'd have me spotted 21 points, besides having reserves at his call.

What's the Use?

Carrots! Phooie! Enable one to see in "relative darkness!" Shucks! Who wants to see in "relative darkness?" Why not turn on the lights? Or strike a match? It is true that owl-eyes might be of advantage in the gloaming when you try to navigate from the living room to the kitchen and discover the furniture in the rooms between has been shifted around until you bump your shins and finally grope your way to a wall—which wasn't portable—and yell madly for a guide.

This does not mean that I want to approve altogether of the foreign policy of the Marines, which as Ralph McGill says, is "To hell with them." I must admit he is fairly accurate when he goes on to say that this was our country's foreign policy in the past, although I am not sure just what he means when he says "we began to smother ourselves and our babies in our own selves."

The Christian church has always been more or less aware of the conflict between the teaching of Christ and the art of war. What I have in mind, when I say that I think we preachers are to blame, is that we have compromised about the clear teachings of Christ or we have preached only the negative side of opposition to war without going on into the full program of aiding our neighbors as ourselves. We are like the warriors of the middle ages who went under the baptismal waters but who kept their swords arms dry so that they could go on fighting as before.

I am really serious in saying that I think the church leaders of today are to blame. We cannot expect the people of our congregations to understand and to practice better than we do. The early church came within a brief inch of winning the whole way through and the one secret of their success was that they took Jesus seriously and put His whole program into practice rather than a mutilated section of it, as we have been doing since the days of Constantine.

I wish you and every thinker on world affairs could read the two or three sentences that begin at the bottom of page 50 in Dr. Fisher's standard history of the church. There is no question as to the facts but we who are teachers and preachers have let our people go on trying to live on a half truth when we might have put them on the whole diet that Jesus had in mind.

It is not enough for me to object to the policy of the Marines unless I can put in the place of it the real policy of Jesus, Who is the Son of God.

ADVOCATES STRONG AID FOR BRITAIN.

Editor Constitution: Many thanks for the conversations with Mr. Singer, of Columbus. I have ordered my secretary to make a note of the date 1968 in our assignment book. And when that year rolls around we'll write another story about Frederick. If we're here.

And now, Mr. Chairman, I move the meeting adjourn. It is so ordered.

Rather Good Bargain.

The good King Alfred, ruling Merrie England in the ninth century, I am reliably informed, paid as much as a hundred acres of land for one book. The item seemed to consider that a pretty high price for a book, though such volumes were painfully produced by priests and done by hand.

But, if you will take time out to figure on it, King Alfred or his heirs would have made a pretty good bargain.

I couldn't say what a hundred acres of land where he lived would be worth today. It probably would have been eaten up by taxes and interest on the mortgages.

But if Alf's descendants or successors had hung onto that book—a first and limited edition—they could swap it today with an American collector for two new battleships and a fleet of planes. Wonder what ever became of it?

I have been confined to a hospital.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

In a long letter, received a few days ago, Dr. Henry Cook, chairman of the British Baptist Mission Society and president of the Greater London Association of Baptist Churches, says:

"London is not only under fire, but in the front line—that is the situation today. And how nobly London has answered the challenge! Bombed, burned, or machine-gunned, the Londoner goes his way patiently, pluckily, and cheerfully. The warnings have become so frequent, the gunfire so continuous, that we are rapidly coming to the position of the two old ladies in a well-known southeast coast town, who were sitting in a coffee shop when suddenly there was a terrific crash. One of the ladies paused as she raised her cup to her lips—'A shell, I think.' 'Yes,' said the other. And they calmly resumed their conversation as if a shell were a trifling thing.

"We will go to wonderland if we will have a home to come back to; we return at night to our cellar, or emergency couch, not knowing whether we shall get up in the morning or not. . . . We take it as it comes, always ready for a laugh. . . . The Londoner has come into his own during these last strenuous weeks, and the fire has only revealed the gold of sturdy, patient, humorous British character. . . ."

Then follows several paragraphs in which Dr. Cook describes the suffering in such detail as the censor permits. I could read between the lines and figure out certain historic Baptist meeting houses that have been destroyed by the intimations allowed by the censor. Here is a paragraph that I believe you will enjoy:

"And all the time we dream a plan for peace. We are sure of victory, and we are sure that we shall get the chance to remake the world a little nearer our heart's desire. The government has appointed a minister of buildings, and his work is mainly in the future. So it is with us. . . . The present war will come to its end, but our work goes on, and our experiences today are teaching us some useful lessons which should serve us well in the years to come. . . ."

"We remember Atlanta with unspeakable joy and thanksgiving. You will convey to all the friends of Atlanta and of America our deepest appreciation of the very substantial aid you are giving us in this crucial hour for democracy. . . ."

Dr. Cook was one of the speakers at the Baptist World Alliance meeting in Atlanta in 1939. He is chairman of the historic British Baptist Mission Society to which southern Baptists have already sent $122,000, with more to follow. Georgia Baptists gave $19,268.73.

U. S. Approves $50,000,000 Georgia Project

Road Network Would Link Strategic Points of Supply, Defense.

The Georgia highway networks of strategic army importance, costing an estimated $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, have been approved by the War Department for immediate construction and must be given all federal aid improvement prior to State Engineer Warren R. Neal disclosed yesterday.

These are highways that connect troop concentration centers, provide direct routes from strategic inland points to the sea, connect quartermaster bases with areas highly productive of war materials and link together vital defense industrial centers.

The roads were requested by the Fourth Corps Area in 1939 and are intermingled with a national network of communication lines planned by the War Department for national defense.

Know Every Inch.

Valuable information on every inch of these two systems, primary and secondary, is in the hands of army engineers. This information includes a report that many Georgia bridges are "woefully weak" for military use and would not support heavy artillery or tanks.

The War Department's orders that the roads be at least 42 feet wide, six feet wider than Georgia roads are today, and that where the terrain will not permit such width that the 42-foot minimum be achieved at least every 2,000 feet to provide passing and parking.

The primary system will connect: (1) The new troop concentration at Camp Wheeler, Macon, with Fort Benning, in Columbus, where the largest infantry school in the world is located. The road will be improved through Roberta, Knoxville and Talboton.

Columbus to Brunswick.

2. Columbus will be connected with Brunswick, long proposed as a naval base for planes and already an established seaport. This road will pass through Albany, Tifton and Waycross.

3. Another connects Augusta with Waycross and Jacksonville, Fla., this being definitely a part of the national defense network, with more strategic value to other corps areas than the fourth, army men pointed out.

4. A triangle connecting Valdosta, naval stores center, with Quitman and Madison, Fla., and Camp Blanding.

Secondary Roads.

The other system is the secondary group of roads in sections, which too are well connected by railroads, and on which specifications for construction do not call for heavy materials, but do demand the 42-foot width.

The War Department has pointed out, however, that work on these routes is not to take precedence over the building of roads of access to military centers such as the proposed Fort Benning-Cusseta double lane and the cut-in from Pembroke, in Bryan county, to the Hinesville antiaircraft base under construction.

This secondary system will adequately serve those sections such as around Cartersville, which are highly productive of war materials—manganese, bauxite and mica.

Routes Approved.

Secondary routes approved: (1) Bankhead highway from Birmingham to Atlanta starting at the Georgia-Alabama line and threading through Bremen and Villa Rica, Douglasville and Atlanta; (2) Atlanta to Gainesville and toward Greenville, S. C.; (3) Columbus to Atlanta via Hamilton, Greenville and Newnan; (4) trunk route from Chattanooga to Atlanta, then extending down to Macon via Jackson, thence through Perry, Cordele, Tifton, Valdosta and to the Florida line toward Lake City. This connects Fourth Corps Area headquarters with Army forts to the north and south; (5) Macon to Dublin to Swainsboro to Savannah, connecting the new encampment at Macon with the fort and port at Savannah; and (6) Savannah to Brunswick, giving a directly land connection between Georgia's two chief port cities, as it is along this route heavy artillery might be called to move and engineers' reports show this route to have the weakest bridges for tank and troop transport of any road on the entire Atlantic seaboard.

The Army withheld specific reasons for the vital importance of these highways they are asking and the Highway Department did not know them.

CLUTCHING LUCK—Here are two more girls who are seeking movie careers. They impressed Charles David, talent scout, during an interview yesterday and were told to come back Sunday night for final elimination, at which time the girls of whom screen tests will be made will be selected. The happy girls are hanging on to a horse shoe they hope will bring more luck. They are Gloria Thorne, of 931 Ponce de Leon, left, and Eleonore Walton, of 58 Fourteenth street.

State Women No Shortage Employes Talk Of Aluminum Of 'Strip Strike' Is Foreseen

Young Ladies Uncertain of Jobs Give Plan Some Thought.

A mass "strip-down-a-strike" among women employes at the state capitol was suggested yesterday.

Mind you, it was only suggested, but Hollywood is responsible for the idea.

A few of the young ladies who are a little uncertain about their jobs under the new administration were scanning yesterday's newspapers with the pictures of a comely movie star who protested her exclusion from a new motion picture by doffing her garments in the middle of the street.

Well, the attractive part about the story was that the curvaceous star won her battle, and film officials gave her back her job.

So, reason the equally comely capitol lassies, "if Governor-elect Talmadge won't notice us any other way why shouldn't we stage one of those things?"

The idea seems destined to failure, because nobody will be president and lead the movement and nobody will be quoted, hence it is unlikely to be a photogenic story.

December 19th is the LAST DAY for payment of State and County Taxes for 1940 without additional cost and interest.

The law requires me to issue Fi. Fa's after December 19th on all unpaid taxes.

As much as I dislike to take this action, I have no alternative but to transfer such Fi. Fa's to outside parties upon demand.

Your co-operation by payment will be appreciated as it will relieve us both of any embarrassment.

Honesty Is Not Always Best in Screen Tests

Talent Scout Likes To Hear Girl 'Lie' About Acting Experience.

By LEE ROGERS.

Honesty isn't always the best policy—not when the girl has a cute little figure, a good face and ambitions to be an actress.

Charles David, chief cameraman for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's eastern talent search crew, likes to interview the girl who tries to "lie" to him about her acting experience.

The man's been around and the girl won't fool him with those little stories that stray from the truth, but when the girl wants to get in movies badly enough to make up some little story about her dramatic training and triumphs, he gives her a chance to judge her honestly on her acting ability and her determination to surmount the thousand and one odds which bar the way to screen success.

In three days David has interviewed several hundred girls at the Georgian Terrace. Of this number, he has found possibilities in about 75—enough possibilities to merit asking them to come back Sunday night to compete with each other before Edward Carrier, director of the test crew. And he'll select more in the interviews between 2 and 4 o'clock and 7 and 9 o'clock today and tomorrow and from 2 until 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

And when he detects some possibilities, Mr. David is a real smoothie at work. He suggests they learn some lines from some poem, or some play that they like so they can recite for the director Sunday night. He gently hints it would be well to adopt an individual hair do rather than trying to copy that of some established movie star.

There will never be another Vivien Leigh, he reminds.

Then he chides them for their lack of ambition—their willingness to rely on chance for a screen test. He tries to incite a fiery determination within them that will make them come back Sunday night with the will to win, to come back dressed to show off their best features, to come back unframed.

"We want to discover you more than you want to be discovered," David tells them. "Just think, if we can make you give a good performance in a screen test that will win you a contract, we'll set in the business. We don't have another thing to worry about as Delivery Still Barely Fifth of Amount Au- thorized for Export.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(UP) Delivery of American warplanes to Great Britain and Canada was stepped up at a rapid rate during October but still was barely a fifth of the total amount authorized for export since the first of the year, State Department figures revealed tonight.

The department's monthly statement on arms export licenses showed that Britain received delivery of $10,177,776 worth of planes during the month. This compared with $50,424,018 worth shipped during the first nine months of 1940. Exports of $59,497,812 in planes was authorized for October, compared with $229,090,079 in the previous nine-month period.

Canada received delivery of aircraft valued at $1,929,334 during the month, compared with $7,519,493 exported previously. The department authorized export of $6,306,600 worth during the month, bringing the year's total to $27,122,702.

Other war supplies shipped to Britain, including tanks, motorized equipment, arms and ammunition, brought that country's October total of arms imports to $20,892,000, compared with $14,070,150 shipped in the previous nine months. Britain's total authorized export through October was $591,341,551. Total exports to Canada during October were $2,963,000, compared with $18,508,000 from January 1. Canada's authorized exports through October were $44,466,000.

A huge birthday cake bearing 80 pink candles will center the lace-covered tea table in the dining room, the cake to be surrounded by a frieze of pink roses, pink snapdragons and ferns. Mrs. Harold Patterson and Mrs. Guy Binford will pour tea from a handsome silver service placed at one end of the table, the appointments to be completed by pink tapers burning in silver holders. An antique silver wine cooler filled with pastel roses and snapdragons will adorn the buffet.

Civic Club Garden Members Make Christmas Display

The Civic Club of West End presented a gala aspect when the garden division members converted the clubrooms into a modern home in Christmas holiday attire, decorated by the members, who featured ornamental shrubs and vines from their gardens. Mrs. L. A. Fleming won the prize for the best display with Mesdames L. A. Hollingsworth, T. A. Slaughter, G. H. Howard and Jessie Manry running second.

Mrs. Fleming chose a plate rail, using an antique Chinese plate for the center. Feathery branches of cedar formed a wreath for the plate and outlined the rail, giving a lace effect, interspersed with silver berries, with a touch of terra-cotta red. Cobalt blue candlesticks, with lighted silver candles, reflected the blue, red and silver, predominating colors of the plate.

Mrs. Slaughter used the piano for her unique formation. Magnolia leaves with magnolia blossoms carved from white turnips formed the centerpiece, white candles and boxwood carried out in cascade effect. Two bisque figures of musicians completed this arrangement.

Mrs. Hollingsworth arranged a dinette table, and termed it a "flexible table," as it could be made smaller and serve as a tea table, or enlarged for a luncheon or dinner table. A crystal bowl, filled with fruits, holly and red berries, was the centerpiece.

Mrs. Howard created a "patriotic mantel" using sprays of green spruce, tied with red, white and blue ribbon to form a frame for the mirror over the mantel. A mound of pine cones and red berries, reflected the blue, red and silver, predominating colors of the plate.

Mrs. Slaughter used the piano for her unique formation. Magnolia leaves with magnolia blossoms carved from white turnips formed the centerpiece, white candles and boxwood carried out in cascade effect. Two bisque figures of musicians completed this arrangement.

Mrs. Hollingsworth arranged a dinette table, and termed it a "flexible table," as it could be made smaller and serve as a tea table, or enlarged for a luncheon or dinner table. A crystal bowl, filled with fruits, holly and red berries, was the centerpiece.

Mrs. Howard created a "patriotic mantel" using sprays of green spruce, tied with red, white and blue ribbon to form a frame for the mirror over the mantel. A mound of pine cones and red berries, reflected the blue, red and silver, predominating colors of the plate.

Texas Provokes Atlanta Headache

A large segment of the football population of Texas apparently spent the day in Atlanta yesterday and, without exception, the callers were all rooting for Texas A. & M.

Strange to say, there wasn't one call, of the hundreds that expressed pleasure over the victory of Texas.

Some of the voices moaned, others were explosive, others sighed, and some were just plain resigned.

And not a lot of Texas supporters in the lot.

The callers all figured it a shame for the great A. & M. team to be knocked out of the Rose Bowl by an oft-beaten Texas team which may end the season by losing to Florida at Gainesville.

Like Conn, Savold is a "picture" fighter who attracts the cash customers to the ticket windows. This is evidenced by the fact Promoter Mike expects some 14,000 to 15,000 fans.

Savold can punch, particularly with a solid left. While he's a long-shot underdog tomorrow night, this factor makes him more than just a guy in there for a ride. He is by all odds the toughest heavyweight—the light-heavyweight champion has taken on since he invaded the "big league."

Grid Briefs

L. S. U. TAPERS OFF.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Coach Bernie Moore honed his Louisiana State Tigers' edge today with a light work-out, which will go on with the dummies and a review of principal L. S. U. plays.

The line studies, turned aggressive, are expected to be thorough again in Saturday's family feed.

WAVE FLAGS PASSES.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Tulane's Greenies tapered off for Louisiana State with the emphasis still on pass defense.

The workout was strenuous but still devoid of heavy contact work. It was the last practice for the season-ending battle with the Tigers.

MAROONS READY.

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The undefeated Mississippi State Maroons will be high spirits today before leaving for Tuscaloosa, Ala. Friday for the crucial battle with tough Alabama.

They spent the afternoon timing and polishing plays to be used against the Tide. They will start the game at full strength.

'GATORS IN SHAPE.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The Florida football squad will leave by bus early tomorrow for Columbia, Ga., where the "Gators" play Auburn Saturday afternoon.

Coach Tom Lee is expected to take about 35 players on the trip. Fullbacks Red Mack and Charlie Tate suffered practice bruises this week, but will be available for Saturday's game. The squad is in excellent physical condition.

VANDY'S NEW WOES.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Vanderbilt's football squad went through its next to the last workout today before meeting the Aggies Saturday.

The players had little fear of Tennessee's prowess, but Coach Red Sanders, his players, had the Texas Aggies defeat by Texas new woes.

Sanders reasoned that the Aggies' loss had elicited the Vols to the No. 1 position in the projected Rose Bowl participants.

"They will be shooting, for another chance in the Rose Bowl," lamented, "and they will fire everything at us."

AUBURN CRIPPLED.

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Auburn worked long and hard on pass defense and offense, but they ended scrumming for the game with Florida.

Several of the cripples were running since he was the top of the list. The list includes Bill Irby, fullback; Carl Hopper, halfback; Bill Yearout, halfback, and Nickie Johnson, end.

Regulars definitely out of the Florida game include Jim Lenoir, end; John Shalkey, tackle, and Rufus Deal, fullback.

ROUSING VICTORY.

It was the first time the Aggies had trailed in a game since Tulane held a brief, 13-7 lead in the third period of the Sugar Bowl contest last January 1.

Wild Bill Conatser's fine kicking—out-of-bounds boots away from the dread Crain boy—kept the Texans quiet for a few minutes, but they broke out again in the second period when Crain intercepted Marland Jeffrey's pass on the Texas 46 and skittered back 18 yards. Layden and Crain took turn about cracking the famed Aggie line and finally Texas pushed to a first down on the Aggie eight on Layden's spot pass to End Malcolm Kutner.

But Bill Buchanan roared in from end to recover Layden's fumble of a low snap-back and the Aggies took over on their 10.

Then came Kimbrough's masterpiece. First Conatser got five and 15 more were added on a roughing penalty. Kimbrough started the demonstration that proved his All-American worth.

63-YARD JAUNT.

Over the tackles, around the ends, smack through the middle the 222-pound giant crushed, tossing in runs of 18, 13 and 12 yards, finally to accumulate 63 yards on a nine-run jaunt. Weary, he finally arrived at the Texas nine and then, on fourth down, tried to befuddle Texas by passing.

It was intercepted in the end zone by Noble Doss—the man who botched the Aggie passing game all day long.

The Aggies were hurt, badly, by the loss of Quarterback Marion Pugh, their top passer, runner and "brains." Once he hobbled out on his badly injured leg and tried a desperate 35-yard pass—but the man Doss was there to intercept on the Texas eight.

The famed Aggie passing attack sputtered and failed, only five completions being registered out of 18 attempts. Texas was covering them beautifully. Texas was quite a football team today—a better team than the seemingly stunned Aggies. They slashed the Aggie line, with Layden and Crain working beautifully; they stopped Aggie passes and they hurled some of their own that A. & M. couldn't handle.

Longhorn Jinx, Layden Passes End Ag Regime

Kimbrough Heroic in Defeat, But Layden Was Too Good.

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT. AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 28.—(AP) Mighty Texas A. & M. came to the end of its rope today—strangled by an ancient jinx and a magnificent football team.

One fierce thrust in the first 57 seconds of play by their 46-year-old traditional rivals, the University of Texas, bagged a touchdown, wrecked the Rose Bowl-bound Cadets and paralyzed 45,000 fans.

It was just that quick. Final score: Texas 7, Aggies 0.

Briefly and shockingly, it was Texas' football game from that first bold surge engineered by Peter John Layden, today one of the finest football players the old southwest has ever put on a field.

Furthermore, these magicians of Dana Xeophon Bible, once the coach of these Aggies himself, used only 13 men to beat a team many

Lose All Games; Join the Navy

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 28.—(P)—Six members of the Dante, Va., High school football team, which lost all its games this season, good-naturedly denied here that they were intent upon drowning their woes in the sea.

But they joined the navy.

The recruits were James Franklin Bowlin, Harry Sproles, Junior McNeill Dixon, Frederick Adam Thomas, William McNeer Clay and Harry McNeill Barker.

Wake Forest Barely Edges Gamecocks, 7-6

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 28.—(P)—Wake Forest's Demon Deacons rolled out Mercer here today, score 20 to 6, to close the season undefeated in the Dixie conference, where it shares the title with Chattanooga and Mississippi College.

Both Chattanooga and Mississippi College turned in three conference triumphs during the season and, fittingly enough for co-champions, played to a 7-to-7 deadlock in their own engagement.

An estimated 3,500 spectators, enjoying ideal football weather, saw the Moccasons score in every period with the exception of the fourth. Mercer registered its lone marker in the second quarter and did not threaten again until the final period.

A Chattanooga fumble which gave Mercer possession on the Chattanooga 40 set the stage for the Georgians' lone score early in the second quarter. Yancey scored from the four as the climax of the drive which tied the count. The placement was blocked.

Mercer came back strong in the final period only to have the attack bog down within shadows of the goal posts. One drive was stopped on the seven and another on the 14.

Though neither of these boys will take the game both are due for plenty of service.

Passmore's work this week has been the highlight of practices, and Kluk has shown more improvement than any of his rivals for the blocking back post.

Coach Wally Butts plans a short drill on Friday afternoon.

"We've done all we can now except pray for victory," the coach said. "The boys are in fine spirits and they know what they're supposed to do. Now we just have to wait and see if they do it."

A gigantic pep meeting will be held Friday night at 7:30 with a big bonfire on the polo field climaxing the rally.

Talks were given by Jere Wells, superintendent of county schools; Jack Troy, sports editor of The Constitution; Mrs. W. F. Dykes, and Coaches W. A. Tucker Jr., Weddington Kelley, P. R. Lewis and Sturgess.

The Texas Aggies undoubtedly were Stanford's first choice, but their defeat knocked them out of the running.

Colorful Gathering The greatest and most colorful gathering of sports writers in Atlanta's history will be a blue (typewriter) ribbon event of next week when the minor leagues of baseball meet here.

Besides the representatives of the far-flung minor-league system, which embraces Canada, there will be delegates from all the major-league teams. Judge Landis, the czar of baseball, will be one of the speakers at the annual banquet.

And to report the doings there will be gathered under one roof a star-spangled assemblage of sports-writing talent such as Atlanta has never known.

The city will derive great publicity out of it. It will be duly noted that this is the gate city of the south, famous for its Georgia peaches (not from trees), Stone Mountain, the Cyclorama and "Gone With the Wind."

The meeting, first minor-league convention ever held in Atlanta, has been overshadowed by football. The Tech-Georgia game has taken up most of the space and attention of the sports-minded populace.

Nevertheless, Atlanta already has been accorded tremendous publicity nationally.

The current issue of The Sporting News, the baseball player's Bible, carries an eight-column art layout and two-column story on page one of the current issue, which is the Atlanta convention number. The pictures include scenes of the Cyclorama, Stone Mountain, Henry Grady monument, Georgia Hall and a street scene.

On an inside page there is another great spread, showing such noted figures, past and present, as Henry Grady, Earl Mann, Hughes Spalding and Major Trammell Scott. A long story accompanies the art.

Atlanta, of course, is the cradle of the Southern Association. Henry Grady, famous Constitution editor and statesman, organized and was first president of the Southern league in 1885.

So The Constitution is closely tied in with the great minor-league convention, having been a pioneer in Dixie baseball.

If you desire to see how important trades in baseball are made, just drop in the Ansley lobby next week and get a first-hand look at the great bunion standing and sitting derby.

Unprecedented It was most unusual to attend a school football team and find not even one college coach present.

That's how it was at the alumni banquet for Boys' High, G. I. A. rulers. Not one college coach was there. No, not one.

Man bites dog . . . cow jumps over the moon . . . and all that sort of thing . . . news.

Four college coaches were invited—had placards at the head table. All four had said they'd be there.

Some wags said it looked as if Commissioner Mike Conner were doing his work well. Others went so far as to inquire if there were any rule against college coaches' attending high-school football banquets any more. Of course, there is not.

It was just an oddity, a mere coincidence, that neither Tech nor Georgia had anyone present. Or maybe it went deeper than that. Tech and Georgia are playing football two days hence. No one needs to guess where the coaches' thoughts are.

So their absence doesn't justify a rise to thoughts that maybe a period of de-emphasis has begun in earnest in the Southeastern conference, although, perhaps, one has.

Just blame it on that Tech and Georgia fracas on Saturday at Sanford field. Who do YOU think will win?

Smart Repartee Coach Shorty Doyal, whose Purples are amazing in that they have won two straight prep championships when upsets have been the rule rather than the exception in football, has turned in another fine job.

That virtually goes without saying.

Coach Doyal is pretty quick on the trigger. We were talking at the alumni banquet and this correspondent made mention of Boston College's using an eligible student MANAGER in the last two minutes of the Auburn game.

"I thought you were going to say student," responded Coach Doyal.

CIVIC LEAGUE.

The first meeting of the Civic League at the M. C. C. on Thursday night found Calvary Young Men's organization, and Four Square coming through for victories, lowering the Florida Aces, Dental College "B" and the Sigma Nu representatives.

By far the best game of the first week's play was the engagement between the M. C. C. and the Dental College "A" teams, which resulted in a 40-to-39 victory for the Y. M. S. A. As the half-time points stand, the M. C. C. enjoyed a 23-to-11 lead and increased this margin to 34 to 17 with but eight minutes left to play. In the 10th period, the Sigmans had hit for basket after basket to tie the count with but one minute remaining. Smith, of the Dental College, represented the Sigmans and was forced to bag a foul shot called on Jacobs, but this lead was short-lived as George Naylor, of the Sigmans, shot under the basket for the winning points.

Jack Hancock, Soph, To Start At Wingback

Both Teams Expected To Open With Running Games.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

While all the wrangling whether Georgia will start seven or eight sophomores is going on, Tech coaches are set to throw a seven-man eleven at the Bulldog Saturday.

Reports from Athens indicate at least seven first-year men will be in the Georgia starting lineup. But when the roll is called on the Jackets only one sophomore's name will be answered.

He is Jack Hancock, wingback from Jacksonville, Fla., and one of the most promising ball carriers on the Tech team. He was hampered by an injured ankle in September practice sessions but against Notre Dame he took a kick and sped it back for a touchdown. Since that time, he has been the Tech star in every game.

Otherwise the Jackets will go down the line with five seniors and five juniors in their starting eleven men. All were members of last year's Orange Bowl eleven.

THREE SENIORS.

The line will have four juniors and three seniors. Rob Ison, end; Captain Hawk, Cavellette, guard, and Butch Aderhold, guard, are the only members who won't return next year. The juniors are George Webb, end; Charlie Sanders and Red Muether, tackles, and Jim Wright, center.

Wright may not start at center but if he doesn't Slim Sutton will get the call. He, too, is a junior.

In the backfield, two seniors and a junior will work with Hancock. Grover Wilkins will probably start at blocking back, and Roy Goree is slated to get the call at fullback. Little Johnny Bosch is the lone junior in the quartet.

There has been much talk and a forecast of a great passing battle when the two ancient rivals meet, but this doesn't mean they will ignore their ground attacks.

GOOD RUNNERS.

No, indeed. There are too many ball carriers on both teams to make coaches give up the idea of ever running at all.

Georgia has Frankie Sinkwich, probably the best running back in the south; Lamar Davis, Ken Keuper and Brooker Blanton to tote the mail. Tech depends on Bosch, Hancock, Ison and the hard-plunging Goree for her ground attack.

In fact one of the Jackets' coaches was moaning after the Florida game because his quarterback didn't call enough running plays in the first half.

But the aerial game will come in for its share of attention, too. All in all, a thrilling game is expected.

G.M.A., Under Bud Harris, Lost Only 1 Home Game in 7 Years

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of sketches of G. I. A. coaches.) Bud Harris, now in his seventh year as head football coach at Georgia Military Academy in College Park, Ga., was born in Cedar- town, Ga., July 17, 1905. He attended Cedartown High school and was graduated from Howard College in Birmingham, Ala., in 1929.

At Howard, where he was one of the top athletes of the school, Harris received a distinction to be conferred on only two players in the long history of the institution. Only Bud and Ham Stevens, who later became a big league baseball pitcher, ever captained both the Howard football and baseball teams in one year. The second year they thumped Tech High for their first victory over the Smithies in 14 years. In 1938, the Cadets shaded Tech High, 12-6, to tie Boys' High for the city championship. They were runner-up to Monroe for the state title. The Cadets dropped the playoff, 7-0, when Bill Yearout, now a sensational sophomore at Auburn, got loose for 25 yards and the winning touchdown.

In his first season the Cadets won nine and lost two, tripping such elevens as Lanier and Monroe A. & M., teams the Cadets hadn't beaten in years. The second year they thumped Tech High for their first victory over the Smithies in 14 years. In 1938, the Cadets shaded Tech High, 12-6, to tie Boys' High for the city championship. Columbia Lion Battles Brown To 0-0 Dogfall Bear Drives Are Halted Twice on One-Yard Stripe.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Brown's aroused Bears, competing against Columbia's rugged Lions without the services of Dick High, their 210-pound line-smasher, were halted twice on the one-yard line today while being held to a scoreless tie by those top-heavy favorites before a chilled football crowd of 15,000.

The Bruins, beaten in their last two starts by Harvard and Dartmouth, turned back Columbia's only threatening thrust on their own 10-yard line early in the game and then stormed back twice in the third period by marching 37 and 29 yards respectively before the stubborn Columbia linesmen held them for downs a scant three feet from their goal line.

It is likely that the battering High, who was injured in Saturday's Dartmouth game, would have plowed over at least once, if he had been available. But the fact that the Lions' doughy forwards yielded but one touchdown in their eight previous starts, seven of which were against major opposition, also must be given equal consideration.

Turf writers are rowing over the "hoss of the year" voting... Right now it looks like Challenor, Seabiscuit or Cotesmore, the jumper.

7 Seniors Play Final Game Against P. C.

Walter Johnson's Boys Have Won Five in a Row.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Coach John Patrick's valiant comebacks will end one of their most disastrous seasons today when they engage Coach Walter Johnson's Presbyterian College team at Hemanse Field at 2:15 o'clock.

With seven seniors, headed by Captain Ernie Sheffield, Fort Pierce (Fla.) guard stalwart, playing their last tilt, the Stormy Petrels are expected to give out with a do-or-die performance against the Clinton (S. C.) eleven, which has won its last five games.

SHIELD TO PLAY.

Besides Sheffield, whose injured hand was taken out of splints only Wednesday, these seniors will bid adieu to the Peachtree road institution's foot-ball wars after today.

The Petrels, whose ill fortunes have run the gamut from having star grid players shipped from school for hazing freshmen to a flu epidemic which necessitated canceling the Stetson game, came back last week with a sensational four-touchdown victory over Erskine in the latter's own back yard. The boys vow they will take this last one for their genial, well-liked coach, John Patrick.

MEISKY HURT.

On the other hand, Presbyterians are highly anxious to clip the Petrels' wings to make a marked success of Walter Johnson's 25th year as a coach at Presbyterian. The Blue Hose may be forced to carry on without the services of Captain Meisky, who suffered a side injury in the Stetson game.

The Petrels are expected to start today's tilt with Jamie Timberlake and Ernie Roberts at ends, Zelenick and Tom Hunter at tackles, Sheffield and Joe Juliania at guards and Jack Mockabee at center. In the backfield Charlie Waller, whose fine passing and running of late has elevated him to first-string back, will replace Joe Tosches as a starter. Jim Pressley, Angie Ferrar and Tom House will supplement him at the other backfield posts.

Surviving are two sons, T. J. and Elmer Smith, both of Atlanta; a daughter, Mrs. J. L. Stewart, of Arcadia, La.; three sisters, Mrs. William Park, of Dallas, Ga.; Mrs. Green Ferguson, of Griffin, and Mrs. Hugh Shirley, of Guntersville, Ala., and two brothers, Bill Tanner, of Guntersville, and Bill Tanner, of Albertville, Ala.

Services will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon at Bethany Methodist church, Paulding county, with the Rev. T. J. Gray officiating. Tanner will be in the churchyard, under the direction of Henry M. Blanchard Funeral Home.

PEEK—The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harold Peek, Decatur, Ill., formerly of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Peek, Mrs. L. R. Johnson, Mrs. George R. Bollinger, Mrs. Kathleen Christianson, Mr. Henry B. Peek, St. Petersburg, Fla., are invited to attend the funeral of Mr. Arthur Harold Peek Friday, Nov. 29, 1940, at 3 o'clock at Spring Hill, Dr. Ellis A. Fuller officiating. Interment, Decatur cemetery. The pallbearers will serve at the church from 10 o'clock until funeral hour. Harry G. Poole, funeral director.

Frank Tinney Is Dead; Won Fame on Broadway

NORTHROP, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Frank Tinney, 53, blackface comedian who attained fame on Broadway and in London music halls in the '20s, died at the Veterans' hospital today. He was a captain in the Quartermaster Corps during the World War.

All coaches agreed 1940 was a year with an abnormal crop of brilliant guards. Suffridge and Corhern were the best, but only a shade ahead of Molinski, of Tennessee; Edward Hickerson, of Alabama; Goree, of L. S. U.; Julius (Mush) Battista, of Florida; Neil Cavette, of Georgia Tech, and Tommy O'Boyle, of Tulane. Each was rated high on offensive and defensive ability, although Suffridge and Corhern earned greatest praise for their alertness in sensing the direction of opposing play and spearheading to halt the drive behind the line of scrimmage.

At tackles they call went to Shires, of Alderson, W. Va., and to Fred Davis, Alabama's 241-pound giant from Louisville, Ky. Davis, a towering chunk of fighting muscle, made good the promises he showed last year when he earned a place on the All-Conference second team, while Shires' savage blocking, tackling and diagnosis of plays made him a sure-shot repeat for the first-string position won in 1939.

Each was rated high on offensive and defensive ability, although Suffridge and Corhern earned greatest praise for their alertness in sensing the direction of opposing play and spearheading to halt the drive behind the line of scrimmage.

In contrast to the plethora of guards, there were few centers who caught the eyes of coaches, scouts and spectators during the season. One standout, however, was big John Gude, of Vanderbilt, a 205-pounder from Memphis, Tenn., who played a steady, rugged game for the Commodores from start to finish.

Second place went easily to Tennessee's Captain Norbert Ackerman, one of the best passers in the league and a standout in defensive play. Warren Averette, of Alabama; Tommy Witt, of Georgia; and Kentucky's Bailey also ranked high.

MANY FINE BACKS.

Nearly a score of brilliant backs were named by the coaches in their balloting for first-string positions, but none ranked higher than Foxx, whom one coach rated: "The best of all—he does everything." Nevertheless, he was not far ahead of Alabama's triple-threat Jimmy Nelson, Mississippi's midget swivel-hips; John (Junie) Hovious, or Auburn's line-cracking Neal (Dynamite Dick) McGowen.

Harry Bridges' Data Goes to Justice Bureau

2,500-Page Report Studied for Grounds for Deportation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(UP) A 2,500-page Federal Bureau of Investigation report on Harry Bridges went to the Justice Department today for study to determine whether the facts warrant deportation proceedings against the west coast CIO leader.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson said that the report, transmitted to him by Chief G-Man J. Edgar Hoover, is "confidential and purely factual in character" and presents no recommendations.

The FBI investigation of Bridges started August 24 when Jackson ordered the case reopened in view of the newly-enacted alien registration law, under which Bridges would be deportable should he be found to have been a member of any organization advocating overthrow of the government by force.

Deportation proceedings which previously had been brought against Bridges were dropped when Harvard Law School Dean James Landis reported that the Australian-born leader of the west coast maritime unions was not a member of such an organization when a previous deportation warrant was issued.

Edgewood Bridge Project Approved

Construction of approaches and bolting of Edgewood avenue bridge at a cost of $67,886 will be started Monday morning under a co-operative agreement between the city construction department and WPA.

C. A. Strickland, assistant administrator in charge of the Georgia office, announced WPA approval of the project, for which the municipality will furnish $33,354. Clark Donaldson, chief of construction, reported the approval to the public works committee and said actual work will commence Monday.

The bridge, one of the city's most heavily traveled arteries, has been condemned for several years.

They work like Trojans—Construction Want Ads do the job in a hurry—whether it's selling used furniture or renting that extra room.

AFL Delegates Re-elect Green By Acclamation

Veteran Leader Pledges To Work for Peace in Labor Ranks.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28.—(UP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was re-elected by acclamation late today at the organization's annual convention. Green has been president since December, 1924.

Green accepted re-election with a pledge to work for peace in the labor movement and to mobilize national support behind the government's total defense program.

Warning the AFL convention in reference to John L. Lewis, former president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, that the time would come when "no man will be able to defy public opinion," Green said:

"I will with all charity devote about my efforts toward bringing about peace in the labor movement during the coming year. And I will do all in my power to mobilize support behind the government's preparedness program. It must be so successful that no marauder ever shall be allowed to set foot on American soil."

Green was re-elected by acclamation. His name was placed in nomination by Frank Duffy, silver-haired vice president of the carpenters and joiners, who referred repeatedly to Green as "chum and pal." Duffy brought laughter from the delegates when he read from speeches which Lewis made when he nominated Green at past conventions.

They were filled with such phrases as "valiant fighter," "great statesman" and other praise. At the recent CIO convention in Atlantic City, N. J., where he stepped down from the presidency, Lewis ridiculed Green.

A Tale About Fish

This is a picture of a child who eats. You can see by his chubbiness and bright eyes there is no feeding problem here. His name is Bobby Lorton, aged 3. His mother is Mrs. Robert Lorton, Peachtree circle, Atlanta. "I like photographers," he said.

There's Always a Reason Why a Child Won't Eat

When a child "is never hungry" or does not want to eat, there is a reason for it. The reason may be only psychological, for contrary to some belief, children are keenly affected by the appearance, flavor and smell of food and are as responsive to attractively served meals as are messy food, unattractive, twice, too large portions, or foods selected without regard to color, flavor or texture combinations often will destroy a child's appetite for that meal. Eating between meals, even if it is "just a bite" may be the reason your child will not eat at meal times. And here's another thought. I have seen quite small youngsters struggling to eat with adult-sized forks and spoons, sometimes even when kneeling in a chair that is so low the child cannot reach the table when he sits in it. Would you be eager for meals if you had to eat in such inconvenient manner?

If your child consistently is not hungry for his meals, try first of all to discover the reason, because there is one. It may be one of the reasons just stated, or there may be some physical condition which should receive attention. Perhaps he is nervously keyed up because of corrections while eating. Do you nag? Perhaps he knows if he does eat, like adults, tire of the same foods served in the same way day after day, though sometimes they do not know why they do not want any more of it. Oatmeal, spinach and carrots all are excellent foods, even necessary foods but they must be varied. Serve young children is easy for them to handle. Soup is best in a cup and a cup with two handles is better than a teacup. Thin soups are more difficult for a small child to manage than thick ones; lettuce should be shredded or cut up; meat should be cut in small pieces; very soft foods need to be helped along with a "pusher" of bread or toast. Small servings, with an allowance for second helpings, are better than very large first servings.

Remember that children are pleased with food that is attractively served. Salads, vegetables and desserts with some pretty garnish will delight them. Arrange the food on a child's plate with some semblance of order—don't mash or mix everything.

And arrange the food with an eye to color combinations. The child's eye will take note of such prettiness.

Variety in the diet is another important consideration. Children

Old-Fashioned Dessert

Desserts that are light and nourishing fit into any meal. When desserts are made with milk they are particularly fine for adults and children. Here's an old-fashioned dessert that still goes over big with moderns:

Floating Island

Three cups milk, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt, 6 eggs separated; 1 teaspoon vanilla, juice of 1 lemon, jelly, jam or grated coconut.

Put milk, butter, half the sugar, and the salt in top of double boiler; scald over boiling water. Slowly pour hot milk into well-beaten egg yolks; return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly until custard just coats a clean metal spoon, about 6 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat immediately, add vanilla and cool, then chill. Just before serving time beat egg whites until stiff and gradually beat in the remaining sugar and lemon juice, continuing to beat until very stiff and light. Drop an "island" of meringue on each serving of custard, and place a teaspoon of jelly or jam or a sprinkling of coconut on each island. Serves six.

Chili, Macaroni Good Combination

Two popular and inexpensive foods that go well together. Try this dish on hearty appetites when the budget demands pampering:

1 $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. package macaroni

Boiling water

1 No. 2 can chili con carne (with beans)

4 tablespoons grated cheese

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water as directed on package. Drain and turn onto a large platter. Heat the can of chili con carne and pour over macaroni. Sprinkle with grated cheese.

Submitted by Mrs. Karl Phillips, 926 West Peachtree, Atlanta.

1 pound veal.

1 pound pork.

1 tablespoon salt.

1 tablespoon lemon juice.

1 teaspoon ginger.

1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk.

1 cup cracker crumbs.

4 eggs.

Have meat ground after weighing. Add salt, lemon juice, ginger and mix well. Add beaten eggs, then milk and cracker crumbs. Put into a baking pan and bake 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 hours in a moderate oven. Serve with tomato or creole sauce.

Sunburst Salad.

Submitted by Miss Jean V. Ernon, Almadora c/o Sledge, Stonewall Place, Memphis, Tenn.

4 small cooked artichokes or 8 canned, drained.

2 lemons, juice and grated rind.

2 oranges.

1 pimento.

If fresh artichokes are used, boil until tender in salted water. Drain, remove "choke" and chill. Cook and spread between layers. Press leaves out like petals to

Havana Professor Killed

In Ten-Shot Fusillade

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—(P)—Dr. Raul Fernandez Fiallo, Havana University professor, was assassinated today in a fusillade of 10 shots fired at point-blank range by three unidentified young assailants, who escaped.

Police said Dr. Fiallo had been accused by some university students of complicity in a radical group called "The Bunch," but had denied any connection except that several members of the organization were his personal friends.

The slaying, in which four of the 10 shots took effect, came as normal university activities were resumed after several days of a student strike protesting against "The Bunch."

CIO Aluminum Employes Vote To End Strike

7,500 Will Resume Work on Big Defense Orders Today.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 28.—(P)—CIO workers at the Aluminum Company of America plant here voted tonight to end a week-long strike which stopped work on several big national defense orders and made 7,500 employees temporarily idle.

The strikers are to return to work tomorrow morning.

Under the agreement a $27-a-week worker blamed by the union for causing the walkout because he threatened a committee man attempting to collect $12 in back dues will be transferred to the Logans Ferry plant of the company.

HOUSE BILLS AIMED AT CURBING STRIKES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(P)—Two bills aimed at preventing strikes at plants producing defense materials were introduced in the house today and, meantime,

Attorney General Jackson advised the House Judiciary Committee that he had no advice to offer it on this question.

Jackson's opinion on whether new legislation is needed was asked by Chairman Summers, Democrat, Texas, of the Judiciary Committee after a storm of critical comment in Congress earlier this week on the work stoppage in the Vultee Aircraft Corporation which holds $84,000,000 in defense contracts.

The measures introduced in the house were sponsored by Representative Smith, Democrat, Virginia, and Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, and represented varying approaches to the question.

Smith proposed to prohibit strikes or lockouts except on 30-day notice, during which period the Secretary of Labor would first attempt mediation and then arbitration. Should either party refuse these offers, the President would be called upon to make public such facts.

Hoffman's bill would require contracts between the factory and its employees covering hours of work, wages and length of employment and would forbid strikes at defense plants during the current emergency declared by the President.

DAM WORKERS ASKED TO RESUME WORK

GILBERTSVILLE, Ky., Nov. 28.—(P)—Representatives of the Tennessee Valley Trades and Labor Council requested striking workers on the huge Kentucky dam project to return to work, it was announced tonight after a meeting of council representatives with TVA officials and representatives of local AFL unions.

In a joint statement, Roy H. Boyd, chief personnel officer, and George Jessup, project superintendent, said:

"The immediate situation requires further investigation and labor has requested the men to return to work and permit the regular established procedure to settle the question."

The Army in Georgia

Promptness of mail delivery in army camps depends on the completeness of the military address on each envelope, Postmaster Lon F. Livingston said yesterday.

He cautioned parents and friends of draftees not to write until they have heard from the family soldier, and been informed to which unit he has been assigned.

Postal authorities expect a jam of undelivered mail at reception centers, first stations to which draftees are assigned. They will only be there from three to five days, Livingston said, and then assigned to training camps and permanent military units. Letters should be addressed to them there, and the army has made plans enabling the soldiers to notify their families of their stations immediately.

Correctly addressed mail includes the rank and name of the addressee, the unit and organization to which he belongs. Return address should be posted in the upper left hand corner.

CAPTAINS SOLOMON, GALT ARE ASSIGNED HERE.

Orders announced by corps area headquarters included the assignment to active duty in Atlanta of Captain Morton Solomon, Infantry Reserve, and Captain William R. Galt, Coast Artillery Reserve.

Captain Galt has been on duty in the office of the quartermaster-general in Washington, while Captain Solomon has been on temporary duty with the constructing quartermaster here, though assigned to headquarters, Second Corps Area, Governors Island, New York.

COLONEL GARLINGTON SENT TO BLANDING

Transfers announced by the War Department in Washington yesterday included those of Colonel Creswell Garlington, Corps of Engineers, from Atlanta to Camp Blanding, Fla.; of Lieutenant Colonel Samuel F. Cohn, infantry, Fort Benning to Fort McClellan; of Major Jack E. Rycroft, Quartermaster Corps, Barksdale Field to Savannah, and of Captain John William Wester, Signal Corps Reserve, Augusta to Washington.

31ST WILL BEGIN TRAINING ON SCHEDULE

Fourth Corps Area Headquarters announced yesterday that the Thirty-first National Guard Division would move into Camp Blanding, Fla., on schedule, December 6-16.

Headquarters declined to comment on an earlier statement of Col. R. H. Keller, camp commander, who said he recommended the guardsmen's arrival be delayed 10 days as "we are not quite sure the water and sewerage facilities will be ready December 4; especially if we have some bad weather."

Officials said here that no change is expected in orders assigning the first units to the camp on December 6. Attention was called, however, to time between now and the opening date and the possibility that a new order could be issued.

The Thirty-first is composed of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida units.

FOUR GEORGIA'S GIVEN COMMISSIONS

Four Georgians, one of them an Atlanta, have been commissioned second lieutenants in the Air Reserve, fourth corps area headquarters has reported.

They are Dick Randolph Longino Jr., 1344 Lanier boulevard, Atlanta; Raymond Lester, of Bloomingdale; Ben Screeen Irvin, of Washington, and Harold Lee Williams, of Cordele.

KETCHUM AND RAND CALLED TO DUTY

Called to active duty have been issued two Georgia reserve officers, corps area headquarters announced yesterday. First Lieutenant Clarence Wood Ketchum, Medical Corps Reserve, has been ordered to proceed from Atlanta.

This new cleansing cream, with its base of milk and vegetables, will keep your skin clean, fresh and clear.

A Cream With the Softening Properties of a Milk Bath

By Winifred Ware.

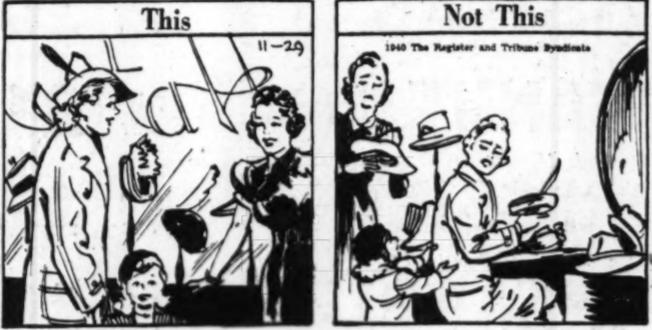

Every woman will want to know about the sensational new cleansing treatment. Believe it or not, it's revolutionary—a new cream made with a base of milk, and vegetable oils, and you know the wholesome softening properties of milk on the skin. Now you can practically take a milk bath with this cream which is over 50 percent milk.

Combining the functions of both a soap and a cream, it leaves the face exquisitely clean, soft and smooth. The cream is left on for just a few minutes and removed with warm then cold water, a sponge tied with a pert blue ribbon being provided for this purpose. It gives a cooling, refreshing sensation to the skin and at the same time easily and quickly cleanses it. The cream tends to act in an astringent capacity in that it firms and tightens the skin. If the skin is unduly dry, there is a milk emulsion for this con-

If it's a dry condition you worry about, the lotion will remedy this and further smooth and soften the skin.

MARY, HOW DO YOU MAKE SUCH DEE-LICIOUS BISCUITS? THEY'RE SIMPLY MARVELOUS!

New Taste Appeal

Vitalize Appetite with VITOHART

HAVE you yet tried the sensational new flour that has everybody talking? Here is something really extraordinary that will vitalize your family's eating habits with new taste appeal—baking-powder biscuits ("Pass the biscuits, Pappy!") bread ("Just one more slice, please!") rolls, cakes, pie-crust, in fact every item in which flour is used. The fuller flavor and greater health qualities of this flour make it different from all others!

The MORRIS Method

The Morris Method by which VITOHART is made is the revolutionary new milling method which retains the "heart" of the wheat kernel, thereby giving a distinctive rich, nutty, WHEATY flavor and also Vitamin B with its complexes, including B₁, B₂ (G) and E. The Morris Method, unlike other milling methods, does not add or "restore" these vitamins to the flour synthetically—it retains them "as nature intended." No other process can advance this claim.

George Brent, Bette Davis Are Unhappy

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—"Hello, darling," says Bette Davis. "Hiya!" shouts George Brent. "Nice to see you," coos Edmund Goulding. And if I hadn't stayed on the "Far Horizon" set, I'd have thought everybody was as happy as their greeting. My first comment to Miss Davis cuts through the gaiety. "You must feel happy the morning after a successful picture like 'The Letter'." "Now you know why I'm so depressed all the time," interrupts Brent with a nonamused laugh.

Brent has made five pictures this year, has to start another before Christmas, and the best he will say of any of them is "It was a fair little film." He is marking off the days until his contract expires at Warners next year. "They are after me now to sign another deal—but not on your life," says George. "I've been here eight years, and that's a long enough sentence for any man."

To tease George a little, I say to Bette, "Well, you've nothing to grumble about with your three-pictures-a-year contract." "Yeah?" she replies. I gather that Bette, as well as Brent, joins the freelancers when Warners are foolish enough to let her slip through the studio's fingers.

To pierce the gloom, I say to Brent, "Well, at least you must have enjoyed making love to Ann Sheridan in 'Honeymoon for Three'."

"That's just it," grumbles George. "There was practically no lovemaking at all in that one!" He is pessimistic about Ann's prospects of winning her fight with the studio. "I hope it does her some good," says George. "But I was on strike for ten months once, and I didn't gain a thing. They have the upperhand always."

This is beginning to depress me, so I return to "The Letter." As usual, Bette gives all the credit for success to the director—William Wyler. And she is also more interested in the success of the other players than her own—particularly James Stephenson, as the lawyer. She explains why she is killed off in the final scene (Katharine Cornell and Jeanne Eagels were allowed to live).

"The Hays office insisted on my death. I was bad, so I had to die. But to live in this case would have been greater punishment. The Hays office didn't understand that." When you see the picture—and you must see it—you'll agree with Bette.

There is nothing depressed about John Garfield in "The Sea Wolf." His mood is rather one of grim determination. "I will never again go to jail," he assures me solemnly. "That phase of my life is over." John and his fans are sick unto boredom of seeing him behind bars in pictures, or as the frustrated male with a chip on his shoulder.

"The Sea Wolf" projects him into the open and salty spaces. Our conversation takes place on the deck of the good ship Ghost (it was the Albatross in the "Sea Hawk"). A realistic sea glitters on an enormous process screen at the back of the set. "I have a new philosophy," continues Garfield, whose face is bloodied up (via makeup). He has just been fighting with Edward G. Robinson. "From now on I accept everything calmly." (Except screen jails!)

There will be no more additions to the Garfield family—"Until England wins the war." The boat is rocking too much for my happiness, but before I cross the plank to safety, Garfield tells me of his ambition to co-star in a picture with Bette Davis. "I think," says John, "she has more sex appeal than any other actress in Hollywood. I would very much like to make love to her in a picture," says John.

It's interesting to remember why she was turned down in her first screen test—by Carl Laemmle Jr. "She's got no sex appeal. She leaves me cold!" said Laemmle. I agree with Garfield.

A Business Woman Needs Massages for Relaxation

By Ida Jean Kain.

At two and three dollars a clip, too busy, and the mental tension heightens muscular tension.

The right psychology is that of let go with your mind. Under the influence of the gentle but firm pressure of soothing hands on knotty muscles, think to yourself, "Mmmmm! This is w-o-n-d-e-r-f-u-l!" And the minute you do that you will start to relax. Then the masseuse can do what you are paying her to do.

Here is what happens when a muscle is tense: It presses on a blood vessel and interferes with the free flow of blood. By stimulating the circulation, massage helps to release this muscular tension. If your treatment is a success, you come out feeling as fresh as a daisy!

But if you are hoping to reduce by massage, you had better limit your calories. In itself, massage is not reducing. How could it be?

It is true that massage helps to break down fatty tissue and to make it more readily available for conversion into energy, but if you don't use the energy you can't lose any weight! And if you follow up your massage with a hearty meal supplying several hundred calories more than you need, you will gain. The old gag that the masseuse is the one who loses weight is true. She is the one who uses the extra energy and burns more calories.

Nor is massage "reducing in spots." The circulation is increased in certain areas and fat particles from these areas are released to the blood stream and are available for energy. But unless you use the energy, the fat particles will be redeposited—perhaps on the very same spot!

You can't get away from the energy intake-energy outgo ratio. Take in more food than you burn and—massage to the contrary—will store fat. Eat less than you use for your everyday energy and you will lose weight. Calorie curtailment is the best means of reducing—and always will be.

(R.D.L.) Before we become confused it may be well to consult Webster—who says prone means lying with face and belly on a line with or upon the earth, floor or bed. Webster drags the face in just to be properly prudish. Let vulgar Old Doc Brady say that as long as the belly is on the ground, floor or bed the face may be turned in any direction yet the posture or position is still prone. Lying on the back is supine.

It is all right to sleep with a high pillow or several of them, or with a very thin pillow, or with none, if you like.

It is all right to sleep heading north, south, east, west or in any intermediate direction.

It is all right to have the head of the bed a bit higher than the foot or vice versa, if you prefer it that way.

It is as healthful for any one, even a person with heart disease, to sleep on the right side as it is to sleep on the left side. Notions that the heart has more work to do when an individual lies on one side or the other are without foundation in anatomy or physiology.

Sleep on mattress or springs as soft and flexible or as hard and unyielding as you prefer.

But beware of sagging bed, springs or mattress. There is an astonishingly common and, as a rule, neglected cause of restless sleep, to say nothing of backaches, sacro-iliac strain, sciatica, imaginary "female trouble," pelvic disorders in men.

"X" Plane To Be Built.
The experts say it can. They take pencils and pads and jot down performance figures of high altitude ships, with sealed cabins whose superchargers let you fly "overweather" where the most favorable winds are to be found. They are not talking now so much of the strato-clippers as of the "X" plane, to be built by Lockheed Aircraft, which will incorporate all the experience gathered from present operations. Although no actual performance figures are available on the mystery craft, it is rumored to be capable of a 300-mile-an-hour cruising speed, a high payload capacity, a range of 3,000 miles or more, and a somewhat larger number of passengers than the Boeings can carry.

There is now on order for the company some $10,000,000 worth of new planes, six of them the Lockheed lodestars, a 14-passenger low altitude ship, one of which will go into service on the Alaskan run. With the exception of six super-clippers, an advanced design of the Boeing 314-type, all of this money is being expended on landplanes.

Landplane Floats Better.
But to answer the questions. The range is in the bag. No more worry on that score. Safety still looms in the minds of the potential ticket purchasers. They are accustomed to thinking of flying an ocean with a good serviceable water hull underneath—a hull that can ride the waves serenely in case of a "precautionary" landing. What is not generally known is that the flotation characteristics—are greater in a landplane with a sealed super-charger cabin than with that surface ship type hull.

The designers tell you that you gain proportionately in speed when you don't have the dead weight of the hull to carry around. You gain by being able to fly to the terminal you want to reach instead of to a coastal port which may be far away. You gain in better rates since the company makes more money; you gain because landplanes don't have to worry about cross currents or swells or driftwood or ice on the landing areas. Weather will play an increasingly smaller part in cutting down operating efficiency when the flying boat bows out.

Airports' Value Realized.

There is another economic factor involved. Development costs for a prototype flying boat are extremely high and the market for them is limited. Continental airlines have no use for them. The lower overhead on the landplane prototype can be spread over a much broader base as a consequence of the demand for it. Practically all the technical advances in propellers, engines, safety equipment and service features that have been built into the flying boat can be incorporated into the landplane.

None of these things would have resulted if the modern airport had not been recognized at last as a necessity by all the nations where flying is done. The pioneering days, when the airline had to dig a landing field out of a jungle with no help from any one are nearly over. Governments have come to realize the advantages to themselves in swift, dependable air service.

We'll be flying across above the clouds and landing at Croydon instead of Southampton for dinner when this war is over.

Company Plans Landplanes for Ocean Travel

More Economical, Safer and Can Float Better, Experts Say.

By ALICE ROGERS HAGER. For North American Newspaper Alliance. WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—In spite of total defense building at the aircraft factories, commercial airline operators of the United States are not forgetting that peace will come some day. Even as a newer, bigger, more luxurious transport is being christened, the drafting boards are already busy with another plane of the future.

That fact also explains why Pan-American Airways, the only United States flag line now operating abroad, is talking seriously about a subject long under theoretical discussion—the use of landplanes for over-ocean flying. More Efficient.

When Pan-American began constructing an airway in 1926, its first route was southward to the immensely promising Latin-American countries. The company would have liked to use landplanes then entirely, for reasons of economy and efficiency, but there were long, barren stretches of water in the way, with no airports to receive them and no planes with sufficient range to meet the need.

The result was the first Sikorsky flying boats, and not until the last few months, when the new strato-clippers went into service between Miami and Belem, did the dream begin to take on reality. This operation is giving satisfaction to everybody—the company, the crews and the passengers. It is safe, comfortable, expeditious and economical.

But the miles at present being flown are measured in the hundreds, whereas a trans-oceanic flight involves thousands. The questions that immediately occur to the layman are: Can the range be extended to that distance? Can it be done?

"X" Plane To Be Built.

The experts say it can. They take pencils and pads and jot down performance figures of high altitude ships, with sealed cabins whose superchargers let you fly "overweather" where the most favorable winds are to be found. They are not talking now so much of the strato-clippers as of the "X" plane, to be built by Lockheed Aircraft, which will incorporate all the experience gathered from present operations. Although no actual performance figures are available on the mystery craft, it is rumored to be capable of a 300-mile-an-hour cruising speed, a high payload capacity, a range of 3,000 miles or more, and a somewhat larger number of passengers than the Boeings can carry.

There is now on order for the company some $10,000,000 worth of new planes, six of them the Lockheed lodestars, a 14-passenger low altitude ship, one of which will go into service on the Alaskan run. With the exception of six super-clippers, an advanced design of the Boeing 314-type, all of this money is being expended on landplanes.

Landplane Floats Better.

But to answer the questions.

The range is in the bag. No more worry on that score. Safety still looms in the minds of the potential ticket purchasers. They are accustomed to thinking of flying an ocean with a good serviceable water hull underneath—a hull that can ride the waves serenely in case of a "precautionary" landing. What is not generally known is that the flotation characteristics—are greater in a landplane with a sealed super-charger cabin than with that surface ship type hull.

The designers tell you that you gain proportionately in speed when you don't have the dead weight of the hull to carry around. You gain by being able to fly to the terminal you want to reach instead of to a coastal port which may be far away. You gain in better rates since the company makes more money; you gain because landplanes don't have to worry about cross currents or swells or driftwood or ice on the landing areas. Weather will play an increasingly smaller part in cutting down operating efficiency when the flying boat bows out.

Airports' Value Realized.

There is another economic factor involved. Development costs for a prototype flying boat are extremely high and the market for them is limited. Continental airlines have no use for them. The lower overhead on the landplane prototype can be spread over a much broader base as a consequence of the demand for it. Practically all the technical advances in propellers, engines, safety equipment and service features that have been built into the flying boat can be incorporated into the landplane.

None of these things would have resulted if the modern airport had not been recognized at last as a necessity by all the nations where flying is done. The pioneering days, when the airline had to dig a landing field out of a jungle with no help from any one are nearly over. Governments have come to realize the advantages to themselves in swift, dependable air service.

We'll be flying across above the clouds and landing at Croydon instead of Southampton for dinner when this war is over.
